Things Happen.
Small Beer Is Here.
Why Must We Sit In?
Ask Dr. Klein.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ONE THOUSAND more banks and the stock exchange are open.

The House passed the beer bill in accordance with President Roosevelt's brief urgent message without delay and by a vote of 316 to 97, Speaker Rainey asking to be recorded as voting "aye."

The Senate will pass the bill before the end of this week and you may be drinking legal beer by the first of April. Each state will decide for itself whether beer may be sold within its border, and how if at all, the beer may be sold.

UNCLE SAM may say with Falstaff's "Prince Hal," "Doth it not show vilely in me to desire small beer?"

But Uncle Sam has an excuse. He wants beer to balance his budget. What our "best financial minds" have not been able to do, the humble, but industrious beer-drinker is expected to accomplish.

It will be VERY small beer, only 3.2 per cent alcohol. But, "small favors thankfully received" by the thirsty, tired of bootleg poisons and "home brew" trash.

With 1,000 more banks reopening, the dollar is strong in Europe, not that that makes much difference to us.

State banks are expected to start branches, under the existing law, and perhaps that is not very good news. A country that has had banks "popping like champagne corks in the old days," thousands and thousands of them, should be a little cautious about starting new banks.

Before anything is started, somebody should find out how it is that in many European countries no bank has EVER failed, and how it happens that while more than 5,000 banks have failed in the United States, only TWO have failed in Canada, and that without loss of a dollar to any Canadian.

THE FUTILE League of Nations, snubbed by Japan in connection with the Chinese matter, still "fusses around" and you learn, to your surprise, probably, that "the United States will sit in" and discuss Far Eastern matters with the league.

It is stipulated that this country will "not allow the league to bind the United States as regards Chinese matters." But, why should the United States meddle in Asia at all? Have we not enough to attend to here? We certainly don't intend to spend men or money in the Far East, or meddle with Japan's proceedings there. Why should we "sit in?"

IF INCOME tax puzzles you, read the "1933 cumulative supplement to federal income taxation," just published by John Wiley & Sons in New York. It is written by Joseph J. Klein, who is a doctor of philosophy, professor of taxation in the College of the City of New York, and, more important, the best informed man in the country on income tax. All that you want to know about taxation, and much more, you will find in Dr. Klein's book.

Common-sense Americans, in and out of government, will be interested in Dr. Klein's statement that increasing taxation does not necessarily mean greater revenue. On the contrary, it demonstrates the soundness of "the law of diminishing returns."

DR. KLEIN points out that American industrial enterprises and payrolls have been based on a willingness to "take risks." When the government arranges to take for itself fifty-five per cent of anything that an enterprising man may earn, the inclination to "take risks" diminishes.

When President Roosevelt has finished with other matters now pressing on him, he will, doubtless, look into the advisability of taking more than half of what a man earns, if he earns anything, at a time when enterprise and willingness to "take a risk" are essential to recovery.

EUROPE IS not thinking much about us, however, our banks, beer, dollars or how we feel. Just at present, Europe has a real war scare, which approaches hysteria in England.

"All nations are marching toward the battlefield, with the dove of peace embroidered on their banners."

He can except THIS American nation. In Asia, in Europe, in Africa's thorny jungles, on India's coral sands, or down underneath in Australia, all that choose may go to war. This nation will watch them sympathetically, and our churches, undoubtedly, will pray for them. But all contributions will end there. And this nation will NOT buy their bonds.

ONCE IS ENOUGH.

SENATE NEARS VOTE ON ECONOMY BILL; WINE ADDED TO HOUSE BEER MEASURE

STOCKS SOAR AS EXCHANGE REOPENS

Prices Jump 2 to 10 Points; Strength in Beer Securities

Stocks rushed ahead spectacularly on the reopening of the markets today following the 12-day suspension of trading arising out of the national bank moratorium. Prices spurted from 2 to more than 10 points, with the big leaders, such as Steel, Telephone, du Pont and others showing the way.

Beer stocks were particularly strong in reflection of the Congressional action on President Roosevelt's demand that the lighter beverages be legalized.

RISE AT OPENING

Initial prices showed the market up from fractions to 2 points or so from the prices prevailing when the markets closed on March 3. Heavy blocks of stock changed hands throughout the session.

The pace of the trading was so spirited that the ticker fell behind the market several times. At 2:10 p. m. over 2,300,000 shares had passed through the market.

United States Steel common, the bellwether of the market, rushed up to above 31 as compared with the close at 26¼ on March 3. The preferred was up 11 points at 67. Telephone was more than 5 points higher around 105.

BONDS STRONG

The bond market was notably strong also. Best grade corporate liens moved ahead vigorously. Government issues staged the widest gains in months, some of them advancing as much as 2 points. The President's budget program stimulated the strength in the governments, and it was rumored some of the so-called "hoarded money" was seeking employment in this market.

EDMONDS GETS EATON POST

The State Senate's controversial investigation of Pennsylvania utilities and the Public Service Commission today produced these developments:

1—Attorney Franklin Spencer Edmonds, of Philadelphia, was chosen as chief counsel to the Senate investigating committee to succeed Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, of Pittsburgh, who resigned in disgust.

2—In a lengthy statement Attorney Eaton declared an imperative necessity still exists for an investigation of "the corrupt and improper practices of the utility companies" and of the conduct of the Public Service Commission.

3—In Harrisburg the Senate Appropriations Committee reported out for action the $100,000 appropriations for the investigating committee.

FUNDS POUR INTO BANKS HERE

New Deposits Flow Into Coffers; More Doors Reopen

Pittsburgh banks today passed through another day in which deposits exceeded withdrawals by substantial figures. Hoarded gold and currency continued to flow into banks and the Federal Reserve. With the banks experiencing a flow of new deposits, little of the new Federal Reserve Bank note issue is going into circulation.

Normal business conditions were restored in all except a few communities as 673 state and national banks in the smaller towns and cities of Pennsylvania which do not operate clearing houses were licensed to resume business with unlimited access to deposits.

Included in the banks opened today were 37 institutions in the outlying sections of Allegheny County.

CONFIDENCE RESTORED

When banks within the city opened for business yesterday they were practically swamped with deposits. Bankers interpreted this as an indication that the action of the new administration have completely restored confidence.

The Postal Savings Banks in this city reported the greatest deposits of gold on record this morning. The central post office here received deposits of $3,500 in gold during the first hour in addition to $1,500 from outlying offices. The first individual deposit of gold during the day consisted of $1,000.

To clarify the significance of conservators who are being appointed to administer the affairs of Federal Reserve member banks in some sections of the country, the Secretary of the Treasury declared that these appointments do not necessarily indicate that the

Kline, Cabinet Get Cut Salary Checks

Mayor Charles H. Kline and his entire cabinet, with two exceptions, received a 16 2-3 per cent salary reduction with their checks from the city for the first two weeks of March.

Those who drew full pay were Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang and Chief City Assessor Thomas C. McMahon. Lang said that the full pay check in his case was an error and has drawn a check to the City Treasurer to refund 16 2-3 per cent. McMahon has not yet stated what his course will be.

Numbers Racketeers Prolong 'Moratorium'

A legal holiday was still on in the "numbers" racket late yesterday, county detectives learned when five Wylie avenue raids netted them no evidence. Crowds in the houses were anticipating resumption of the New York exchange today, detectives believed.

HEAVY DAMAGE TO PROPERTY

A rapid rise in the Allegheny River as the Monongahela fell today sent the stage at Point Bridge up to 28.5 feet at 2 p. m., after the gauge there had shown a slight recession during the morning.

At 2 a. m. today a crest of 28.3 feet was reached. This figure held until 10 a. m., when a drop of one-tenth of a foot was recorded. Then the fall was stopped by the rise in the Allegheny. A further rise of six inches, to a stage of 29 feet, was expected by night. River interests took precautions to prevent further property damage.

Hundreds of school children were given a holiday as water backed into the basements of the schools. At the Woods Run School, Westhall and Petrosky streets, 600 children were dismissed, and 500 were freed from the Thaddeus Stevens School, in Main street, West End.

3.2 PER CENT BREW WINS APPROVAL

Debate Expected to Start Tomorrow; Vote This Week

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—The House beer bill neared final congressional approval today with a favorable report from the Senate Finance Committee.

The only change made in the House bill was an amendment to legalize wine and fruit juices of 3.2 per cent alcholic content, which is the same limitation as will apply to beer.

Heeding President Roosevelt's request for swift action on the beer legislation, the committee approved the bill without a record vote after less than an hour's consideration in executive session.

The committee rejected without a record vote an amendment proposed by Senator Barkley (Dem.), Kentucky, to reduce the permissable alcoholic content from 3.2 per cent to 3.05 per cent, which was the limitation in the bill before the Senate last session.

The wine amendment was sponsored by Senator McAdoo (Dem.), California, and was accepted without a record vote.

HASTY ACTION

Chairman Harrison said the beer measure would be called up in the Senate immediately after the pending economy bill, which he predicted would be passed today.

This would permit the Senate to begin debate tomorrow on the beer measure under a schedule which Congressional leaders predicted would send the measure to the White House by the end of the week.

The beer bill is the third step in President Roosevelt's emergency program and forms an important part in the Democratic plans for balancing the budget.

Experts have estimated it will raise from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 in revenue.

EFFECTIVE SOON

Senate leaders are confident of an overwhelming majority for the bill when it reaches a vote, with virtually solid support from the Democratic side and a majority from the fewer Republicans.

The bill will have to go back to the House if approved by the Senate in the form reported today because of the wine amendment, but Senate leaders believed it likely the House would accept this change without sending the measure to conference.

Similar in form to the beer legislation which failed in the last session, the pending bill would legalize the manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent beer by weight in states which do not have local laws prohibiting it.

A tax of $5 a barrel would be imposed on the beverage and brewers would be required to pay $1,000 license annually.

First Ad for Beer Appears in N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—For the first time in years a beer advertisement appeared in New York newspapers yesterday. A man's hand was shown holding a glass of beer of true-to-life size.

The advertiser, a "pioneer" brewer, asserted the firm "is today preparing to supply you tomorrow with the beverage you so thoroughly enjoyed yesterday."

CURB PLACED ON CUTS FOR VETERANS

Passage Today Seen As Rules Limit Debate

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.) — The Senate today adopted an amendment to the economy bill to prevent removal from the pensions rolls of Spanish-American War veterans over 62 years of age but allowing the President to change the rates.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—The Senate held its third day of discussion of the administration economy bill today with debate sharply limited and passage predicted by leaders before adjournment.

Already approved by the House, it had been amended considerably during a 10-hour session that carried well into last night, but its sponsors said the changes involved only slight cuts in the estimated half billion dollars proposed to be saved by executive slashes in veterans' benefits and federal salaries.

MINOR CHANGES

Democratic leaders conceded some further amendments might be adopted, but were confident the basic principles of the legislation would be preserved when it is sent back to the House for action on Senate changes.

Rising in favor of an amendment by Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, to bar removal from the pension roles of any Spanish-American War veterans over 62 years of age, Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, bitterly assailed Senator Fess (Rep.), of Ohio, for his speech yesterday in which the Ohioan said economies could not be effected if the people depended upon Congress. Senator Borah said:

BORAH'S PROTEST

"Time after time Congress has reduced appropriations below estimates sent to us by the executive department and the record will disclose the real point of extravagance has been in the executive department of this government."

Borah said the sole reason advanced for passage of the bill was the argument that Congress itself would not retrench. He asserted:

"I am not willing that Congress shall take all the blame."

Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, favored the bill and said he believed "President Roosevelt will carry it out fearlessly, honestly, sympathetically and fairly."

MELLON RUMOR HIT BY REED

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—A rumor that Andrew W. Mellon, retiring ambassador to Great Britain, is afraid to return to the United States because he shipped $5,000,000 in gold from this country to the British Isles, was denied in the Senate today by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania. Reed said:

"I am informed by persons who know that Mr. Mellon did not ship gold abroad and that he is sailing for the United States tomorrow."

During debate on the Democratic economy bill, Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, declared it was "an open secret" that Mellon threatened to resign from the Harding cabinet in 1922 unless the President vetoed the soldiers' bonus. Reed retorted:

"Mr. Mellon has been the victim of more open secrets than any other man in public life. One of the more recent of these so-called open secrets is that he exported $5,000,000 in gold to the British Isles and is afraid to return home lest he be placed under arrest."

LONDON, March 15.—(INS.)—Andredw W. Mellon, retiring United States Ambassador to Great Britain, will definitely retire to private life in Pittsburgh upon his return to America, he informed International News Service today.

State Beer Sale Rules Drafted for Assembly

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(INS.)—Swift Congressional action in pushing the 3.2 per cent beer bill to enactment was matched today by the speed of Pennsylvania legislators charged with drafting statutes to control the manufacture, distribution and sale of the beverage.

The House liquor commission, headed by Representative Clinton Sowers, Philadelphia, was in session until last midnight and planned to reconvene later today so the bill will be in shape for introduction in the Assembly next Monday night.

As tentatively drafted, only those manufacturing beer for sale would be required to obtain licenses. So far there is no provision to make the home brewer pay a fee when the product is for his own consumption.

The commision has tentatively decided that sale of beer in establishments where groceries are sold will be banned. Likewise, there will be no beer "across the bar." There was a possibility that this will be modified to exempt soda fountains from the eminent rule, but members hope to confine the sale to table service as far as possible.

ROOSEVELT STILL CHEERFUL DESPITE STRAIN OF CRISIS

SWIFT VICTORY HAS AMAZED CAPITAL

Despite Good Humor, President Shows Weariness

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The end of the banking crisis today, with the reopening of thousands of small banks throughout the country, brought to a close a 10-day period of national tensity and gravity such as Washington never has witnessed in peace time.

Through it all, the one really calm figure, and seemingly the only one who never lost his sense of humor, has been Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Pitch-forked into a situation such as no President ever has been called upon to face at the outset of his administration, he has driven through to accomplishment more far-reaching legislation in 10 days than normally could be accomplished in 10 months. He has supplied the driving force; Congress merely the votes.

BANKING DICTATOR

Today he is virtually the banking dictator of the nation. Probably by tonight he will be armed with almost equally dictatorial powers to cut and slash government expenditures by hundreds of millions of dollars annually. A semi-dictatorship over agriculture is just around the corner. At his insistence, Volsteadism will be kicked into the discard.

It has all been done at such breath-taking speed, such disregard for conventional precedents, as to leave Washington, accustomed to more sedate procedure, literally gasping and wondering what manner of man it is who has thus taken charge of things.

Although he has grinned and joked through it all, the stress and strain of the first 10 days in the White House have left their mark on the new President. There are lines in his face that were not there on the wind-swept Capitol plaza March 4, when he gravely promised to obey and defend the Constitution.

FOREGOES EXERCISES

He has had no exercise. He has had very little sleep. He has lunched at his desk. What little sleep he has had has frequently been broken into by long distance calls. He has run his staff ragged, so much so that they had to draft 10 additional stenographers for White House use. Upwards of 10,000 telegrams have poured in on him in the past week. The conferences have been constant and far into the early morning hours.

There is no White House physician any more—he abolished the position on March 4. Consequently, no expert opinion can be had as to the toll of the past 10 days on his stamina and constitution, but if there were a resident physician such as all other Presidents have had in recent years, undoubtedly Mr. Roosevelt would be advised to "slow up."

Congress is, or had been, in a subservient mood. Impressed with the gravity of the national situation, the Legislators, with few exceptions, seem to have been glad to find some one willing to take the enormous responsibilities of the moment.

DRIVES CONGRESS

Sensing the situation, and heartened by the streams of approving telegrams, indicating that public opinion is solidified behind his program, Mr. Roosevelt plans to drive through to all his major objectives while the time is ripe.

He plans to continue his trip-hammer messages on specific subjects, keeping them all brief and forceful.

Unemployment and agriculture are next on his program. Once they are acted upon, there probably will be a breathing spell in the dizziest pace that Washington has ever witnessed.

Gore Urges U. S. Control Of Unified Bank System

Oklahoma Senator Blames Divided Authority

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Unification of the nation's banking system under complete control of the federal government was urged last night by Senator Gore (Dem.), of Oklahoma.

He advocated adoption of his resolution for a constitutional amendment to bar issuance of charters to state banks by the various state governments without federal approval.

Gore said he plans to enlist the interest of President Roosevelt in an effort to get full administration support for his bank reform plan. He said:

"Almost everybody agrees that there is something fundamentally wrong with the nation's banking system. Most folks seem to agree that the core of the trouble is the dual nature of our present financial organization.

"We have national banks that the states can do nothing about and we have state banks that the national government can do nothing about. The result is chaos. That condition has had a lot to do with our present trouble.

"What we need is national regulation of the whole banking system. At present our dual system is like the Siamese twins. If one gets sick, the other is affected. If one dies, the other cannot last.

Gore's proposed amendment, which has been referred to the judiciary committee, provides:

1—Hereafter no state shall, without the consent of Congress, charter a bank and all state laws on the subject of banking shall be subject to the revision and control of Congress.

2—The Congress shall have power to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper to provide for a more uniform system of banking throughout the United States.

Dunn Drafts Bank Plan on Braille Typewriter

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Representative Dunn, blind member of Congress from Pittsburgh, is preparing a bill which would have a federal banking commission supervise all banking investments.

Working on his Braille system typewriter, Dunn yesterday made a rough draft of the measure, which he hopes to introduce some time this week. Dunn also is considering introduction of a bill to remove the $2,500 limit on postal savings deposits and establish a checking system for the postoffice banks.

He came into contact with both on his usual early morning walk up Lexington avenue today.

The horse was attached to a delivery wagon and Mr. Hoover paused, smiling, when Lawrence Richey, the former President's secretary, stopped to pat the animal's nose.

TRUNK SLAYER ASKS PARDON

STATE PRISON, FLORENCE, Ariz., March 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, nervous but unusually coherent in her statements, expressing sorrow for her slaying of Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, is telling her story again in what may be her final appeal from the noose.

When the Arizona Board of Pardons and Paroles—final tribunal for her except that a jury might be asked to pass on her sanity—adjourned late yesterday until today, the blonde figure in the sensational Phoenix "trunk killings" had recounted almost exactly, but more lucidly, the story she used on the witness stand at Phoenix last January in one of her appeals.

She is under sentence to hang April 14, for the shooting of Mrs. Leroi.

She said she had been misled into believing she would be allowed to tell her story at the first trial and was confident of acquittal if a jury heard it.

Nearly a dozen patrons fled in panic from the Central restaurant in Main street, Carnegie, early today, when A. F. Kaechele, 42, of 332 Carothers avenue, Glendale, ran amuck with a crowbar, according to a police report, and destroyed furnishings.

Kaechele was arrested in the Glendale-Carnegie road a short time later by Carnegie police. He was to be given a hearing today before Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen on a charge of malicious mischief. Kaechele is a former Justice of the Peace of Glendale.

Mrs. Roosevelt Afraid To Sleep, Miss History

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told her former pupils at the Todhunter School for Girls today that during her first week in the White House she was afraid to go to bed nights lest "something interesting might happen while I was asleep." She added:

"You get a big thrill out of history in the making, even though you have no responsibility yourself.

"During the daytime things happened mostly in the executive offices. But at night it was all in the White House and very exciting.

"Finally, Friday night, things seemed to have quieted down, and we all went to bed early.

"At 12:30 a. m., however, I was awakened by the telephone and told about the Los Angeles earthquake.

"I went in and wakened my husband and told him about it. He told me to wake up Mr. Howe and Mr. Early, two of his secretaries, and to get in touch with Los Angeles at once.

"'But they say the wires are all down,' I told him.

On her first visit since her husband's inauguration, Mrs. Roosevelt appeared at the school accompanied by her little granddaughter, Anna Eleanor Dall, just as she used to do when she was teaching there.

She will dine with friends tonight and will leave for Washington tomorrow morning.

F. R. WILL HOLD CONGRESS FOR RELIEF PLAN

Job, Farm Aid Action Sought at Present Session

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Congressional plans for a recess after the enactment of the economy bill were abandoned today, when it became known that President Roosevelt wants action on his unemployment relief and farm relief measures before Congress quits even temporarily.

These measures are now in process of formation and it is possible that the White House may send one of them, probably the farm measure, to the Capitol tomorrow.

SPEED SOUGHT

Mr. Roosevelt believes that any farm measure must be made applicable to this season's crops if relief is to be made effective.

The domestic allotment plan, which figured so largely in campaign debate, has been largely abandoned. Instead, a new approach has been made to the problem with a view to (1) mutual agreement between the large wheat producing countries to reduce production by about 15 per cent, the amount of the current world surplus, and (2) the leasing of marginal lands from farmers and their retirement from production.

Mr. Roosevelt believes the federal government can put 200,000 men to work in the national forests under the "work camp" plan within four or five weeks after the legislation is passed.

RECRUIT WORKERS

The plan is to recruit these workers from industrial centers where they have been existing on virtual doles for months.

It was indicated no final decision has yet been made as to the extent of appropriations Congress will be called upon to make in this connection.

The director of the budget was looking into unexpended balances in the Treasury today in the belief that some of the Roosevelt program could be initially financed from such sources.

But probably in the end, Mr. Roosevelt will be compelled to go through with his original intention of asking Congress for $500,000,000 to inaugurate a large-scale employment program through needed public works, and in the reforestation projects.

STILLMAN WINS TILT IN SUIT

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—James A. Stillman, millionaire banker, today won the first move in the libel action brought against him by Luc Rochefort, former Canadian banker, who is also suing him for $200,000 for alienation of affections of Rochefort's wife, Marjorie.

In his ruling prohibiting the Canadian from questioning Stillman as to charges that Rochefort and his wife conspired to drag the wealthy New Yorker into the alleged love affair in order to sue him for alienation, Supreme Court Justice Riegelman in Brooklyn absolved Stillman from knowledge of the affidavit on which the action was based.

This affidavit was made by Miss Astrid Haug, in whose Long Island City apartment, Rochefort and his wife were alleged to have hatched the conspiracy, it is in Stillman's possession.

The alleged relationship between Stillman and Mrs. Rochefort began in April, 1932. Later they went to Havana, "occupying separate suites," where the banker backed Marjorie in a beauty parlor venture. He says he thought her a widow.

When the suits were instituted last January, Mrs. Rochefort promised to testify for Stillman.

Hitler Postpones Visit to Mussolini

BERLIN, March 15.—(INS.)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler's projected visit to Rome for a conference with Premier Mussolini will be postponed owing to the fact the new Reichstag meets on March 21, it was understood today.

Information in reliable quarters said Hitler was not anxious to have his visit to Rome coincide with that of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Britain.

FRANCO-ITALIAN PACT SOUGHT

International News Service.

GENEVA, March 15.—A comprehensive proposal for a Mediterranean naval limitation pact, promising settlement of the long-standing Franco-Italian parity controversy, will be laid before Premier Mussolini, of Italy, early next week by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Britain, it was learned by International News Service today.

With official confirmation of MacDonald's impending departure from Geneva to discuss disarmament and other troublesome European problems with Il Duce, it was established that this will be the high spot of his mission to Rome.

Premier MacDonald, accompanied by Sir John Simon, his foreign secretary, is due to leave Geneva on Saturday, arriving in Rome on Monday. The projected Anglo-Italian conference was hailed with gratification by French officials here.

Before he leaves, Premier MacDonald will place before the general commission of the disarmament conference a plan for a compromise disarmament convention. The plan calls for mass reduction of armaments and an international agreement not to resort to force for solution of international controversies.

Willing to Live Here If She Could Be Opera Star

Two passions are foremost in the heart of Lois Moran, the Pittsburgh girl starring in the musical comedy, "Of Thee I Sing." One is her job, the other her singing.

Miss Moran considers her career in musical comedy more important at present than thoughts of marriage. She said:

"I could never carry more than one job at a time, and since I consider marriage a job I shall continue with my work on the stage. To break the routine of this I would like to go to Hollywood and make a movie."

Miss Moran for many months studied voice in New York under Frank LaForge, instructor of Lawrence Tibbet. She hopes at some future date to go on the stage in England. But she would prefer opera. Asked if she would consider living in Pittsburgh, she replied:

"Perhaps, if I could become an opera star, but without my work I would be lost."

Sunday afternoon the entire family gathered at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Ursula Dowling, 4154 Bigelow boulevard, with whom she is staying, to talk over "the times when..."

She has been entertained at several parties this week, one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crusinger, and another at the Chatterbox, given by an uncle, Paul Evans.

Her breakfast is made up of four liquids: orange juice, lemon juice, coffee and milk. During the day she is always ready to nibble at caviar or strawberries.

HERRIOT URGES FRANCE PAY TO WIN U. S. AID

Changed Conditions in Europe Show Need of Ally, He Warns

PARIS, March 15.—(AP.)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot has frankly warned France that it is to her "essential interest" to pay her three-months' overdue debt to the United States as soon as possible in view of changed conditions in Central Europe.

While the French government is seeking a League of Nations investigation of Hitler's Nazi storm troopers and is aroused by their activities in the Rhineland frontier, Herriot has speeded up his campaign for a close agreement between the United States, England and France as "the best guarantee of freedom and peace."

URGES PAYMENT

As chairman of the Chamber of Deputies' foreign relations committee and leader of the government party, he seeks a Chamber vote for payment of the $19,000,000 interest owed the United States since last December, before the new ambassador, Andre Lefevre de Laboulaye, leaves for Washington, probably in early April.

Herriot told a Sorbonne audience last night:

"We must not prolong the question when we see at Geneva a coalition of dictatorships, one of them in a country in which people are being pursued and molested because of their religion."

FEARS ISOLATION

Protesting that non-payment of the American debt "isolated" France, Herriot has declared the similar theories of Hitler and Mussolini, in Germany and Italy, endanger peace and lead to the revamping of Europe by revision of treaties. He said:

"It is the duty of all those who believe in the right and liberty of France, England and young free America to stick together."

He has maintained consistently that these are "the three great democracies" which must defend peace, and several days ago wrote that Germany is preparing at Geneva "to take the offensive" against France and even Great Britain.

EXTEND INCOME RETURN TIME

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—Deluged with applications for postponement of the income tax payment due from corporations and individuals today, the Bureau of Internal Revenue granted a general extension for filing returns and for the first installment on calendar year 1932 incomes to March 31.

Taxpayers availing themselves of the postponement will be subject to a penalty of 6 per cent interest per annum, if full advantage of the extension is taken.

Should taxpayers be unable to meet the payment of the first installment March 31 they may file an affidavit to that effect with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who may grant an extension of six months and upon subsequent payments up to 18 months. There is an interest rate of 6 per cent per annum on all payments postponed.

Business was slow at the Pittsburgh office of the Internal Revenue Bureau today, due, officials believed, to many taking advantage of the postponement of the final date for filing income tax returns.

Nevertheless the bureau will remain open until midnight tonight, D. B. Heiner, the collector, said, in order not to disappoint taxpayers who planned to make their returns by this date.

Roosevelt Appoints 3 to Shipping Board

Roosevelt School Girl Wins Title Contest

Irene Hartman, of Room 12, Quentin Roosevelt School, today was announced as the winner of the contest in naming the picture feature, which the Sun-Telegraph runs daily as an aid to school pupils. The new title, "Pictorial Education," is used for the first time today. Miss Hartman will receive a gift, and her school a reference work or similar award as the result of this selection.

At the same time, Miss Helen Kabel, of Most Holy Name School, will receive an award, as will her school also, because a title she suggested, "Tele-Pictorial Lesson," won equal support from the judges in their first vote.

The judges were Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology; Dr. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University; Dr. O. C. Held, of the department of education at the University of Pittsburgh; the Rev. Paul Campbell, superintendent of parish schools, and Dr. David R. Sumstine, director of curriculum study and research of the Pittsburgh schools.

The feature, conceived first by Dean A. B. Wright, of Duquesne's School of Business Administration, has been published for six weeks on one of the Sun-Telegraph's feature pages. It was designed to aid those students who needed illustrations to submit with their essays and compositions, written as homework.

Not only has it appealed to these pupils, for whose use it has been approved by city, county and parochial schools, but also to the general public. The proposed titles for the feature, submitted only by pupils, were weeded out by their teachers and then submitted to the judges who found it difficult among an unusually large number of really excellent titles to pick the winners.

FLOODED RIVERS CONTINUE ON RAMPAGE

Fifteen families, occupants of a colony in the Manchester district, at the foot of Franklin street, were forced by police to abandon their homes when the surging forces threatened their collapse.

Thomas Jones, his wife and three children were driven from their home when the flood carried away the wooden supports that moored their houseboat to the shore. They were given shelter in North Side Police Station.

PUMPS AT WORK

For the first time in four years flood pumps were at work pumping water from the basement of Central Police Station.

The tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from the Point for a distance of 15 blocks were covered as flood waters covered lower North Side. River avenue, in the warehouse district, was almost completely covered by water.

At the foot of Short street the Monongahela River was within four feet of the Water street level.

Meanwhile rivermen were guarding against a repetition of yesterday's ravaging effects of high water and tugging currents when an entire fleet of two steamers, a towboat, four derrick boats and a score or more barges were swept from their moorings at South Twenty-second street in the Monongahela River. Three derricks were sunk, the steamboat P. M. Pfeil smashed to bits, the towboat Poppy crushed, and two bridges damaged. Rescue boats spent several hours rounding up the runaway barges, one of which was swept down the Ohio below Sewickley.

BOATS, BRIDGES DAMAGED

The damaged fleet, valued at $100,000, was owned by the Vang Construction Company and the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company. The greatest damage was done in the Monongahela River, where derrick boats crashed into the Smithfield Street Bridge and the Fourth avenue span of the Pennsylvania Railroad. A gaping hole was torn in the pedestrian walk on the eastern side of the Smithfield Street Bridge, necessitating suspension of street car traffic for nearly an hour.

The Steamer P. M. Pfeil was reduced to splinters when it rammed a pier of the Liberty Bridge. The dock boat and a 60-foot derrick, tied together, piled up under the Fourth Avenue railroad bridge. The derrick sank a few minutes after the crash and the dock boat wedged between the south shore and a pier. Another derrick continued downstream where it wedged beneath the Smithfield Street Bridge. The steel boom tore through the under-structure of the bridge and had to be sunk to permit repairs. The third derrick, caught after the first break, was torn loose again shortly before 8 o'clock last night when it swept over the dam at Lock No. 1 and capsized in midstream. The fourth derrick sank in midstream near the Point.

TOWBOAT CRASHES

The towboat Poppy, its pilot house torn off in passing beneath the Fourth Avenue Bridge, was swept into a string of barges tied to the north bank of the Monongahela River, below the Wabash Railroad Bridge and the steamer Iron City was caught in midstream below the Point.

Considerable damage resulted to shipping and property along the banks of the Allegheny River when that turbulent stream washed away about 75 feet of the new coffer dam at Lock No. 2.

Cellars of homes and buildings along the banks of the Allegheny were flooded last night as the rivers rose to a stage of 28.5 feet.

In the lower North Side the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania tracks on the site of old Exposition Park were covered with water and a number of huseboats tied to the north bank of the Ohio River in the Manchester district were swept away. All of the occupants had abandoned their makeshift homes previously.

The United States Weather Bureau reported heavy rains throughout both the Monongahela and Allegheny watersheds during the night.

BARGE OVER DAM

Water stood more than two feet deep in the basement of the Aliquippa Municipal Building. Franklin avenue, was flooded.

Street car traffic was routed through the Clarion plant of the Carnegie Steel Company from Ben's Bridge to Maple avenue in Clairton as waters stood four feet deep in State street.

The Clairton-Duquesne road was flooded in several places.

Seek to Identify Drowned Woman

Morgue attaches today were endeavoring to establish identity of a woman whose body was removed from the Allegheny River at Barking dam, Plum Township, late yesterday, after being sighted by three boys watching the flood waters. It was taken to the morgue.

The victim, about 33, was described as five feet eight inches tall, 125 pounds, with brown eyes and brown hair streaked with gray, and wearing a silk dress of red, yellow and blue.

Boy Dies in Flood Near Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 15.—Flood stage of Paint Creek at Scalp Level, near here, last night claimed the life of 4-year-old Merle Helsel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Helsel. He plunged into the stream on a coaster wagon, which carried him beneath the guardrail of a bridge.

4 Riding 'Hoodle Bug' Hurt in Slide Wreck

EAST BRADY, Pa., March 15.—Four passengers were injured today when a Pennsylvania Railroad gas-electric passenger car crashed into a landslide near Leatherwood, jumped the rails and turned on its side. Its nose was in the soft mud within four feet of the flooded Red Bank Creek.

The injured were taken to Red Bank after being treated by a physician at the scene of the wreck. They were: Mrs. Wade Smith, New Bethlehem; Fred Hilton, DuBois; Elmer Guenther, Driftwood, and Guy Miller, of Hawthorne. Hilton and Miller are railroad employes, passengers on the train.

The motor car, known locally as the "Hoodle Bug," left East Bethlehem at 8:25 and 10 miles west, near Leatherwood, crashed into a landslide which had spread the rails. Engineer C. H. Lawson and Conductor Wade E. Smith saw the slide, but were unable to stop the car before it overturned. The trailer, a freight car, remained upright.

QUIZ OF BANKER PROTESTED BY DEFENSE

Character Witnesses Testify; Court and Lawyers Confer

With the defense battling every step of the way, the trial of Charles A. Bardolph, president of the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company, charged with misuse of the bank's funds, was nearing a close today.

Bardolph's testimony aparently was concluded this afternoon after he had been on the witness stand for four days.

He was followed by W. J. Arlow, former assistant treasurer, who testified he had compiled the reports for the State Banking Department, and Bardolph signed them. E. J. Heckel, a former teller, described the method of carrying stock purchases as cash items.

Several more defense witnesses, including character witnesses, remained to b called. Eight character witnesses, bank directors and produce dealers, testified for Bardolph this morning. Indications were that the case would reach the jury tomorrow.

MAJOR CHARGE TOUCHED

Toward the close of the cross-examination Phillips began ques-examination yesterday Phillips began questioning Bardolph on alleged actual embezzlements. Previous questions had been on so-called technical embezzlements, false entries and purjury in swearing to the state report of the bank condition.

It had been testified the Handel mortgage had been partially paid and then transfered to the Pennsylvania Surety Company. The latter paid the mortgage off at the rate of $4,000 a month to the bank, but instead of applying the money to the mortgage, Bardolph said he held the payments, totaling $30,000, in suspense.

Phillips asked:

"What do you mean by 'held in suspense?'"

"I mingled these payments with my own funds, and kept some in the safe deposit box in case there was a demand for cash."

"What was the purpose of holding this money in suspense from November, 1930, to July, 1931?"

BALANCE PAID

On July 20 Bardolph entered $25,000, in the form of a note of the Parrish company, as a payment on the mortgage, and nine days later paid the $5,000 balance. Asked why he did not pay it all at once, Bardolph said:

"I didn't have enough at the time."

Phillips said:

"You had used some of the money?"

"I didn't have the cash available. I had notes and could have raised the cash."

Phillips asked:

"You told us you had that money in the vault mixed with your own funds. How much did you have?"

"I may have had $5,000 or $7,000."

"Why didn't you pay it all at once?"

NOT STOCKHOLDER

"Were you a stockholder of the Parish company?"

"I was not."

"Didn't you testify before the grand jury that Friedman, Parish and yourself were the only stockholders?"

"I was a member for the bank. The stock was in my name as trustee."

"Was the Parish company solvent?"

"It was until the bank closed."

Fire Damages Stores, Flats in New Castle

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 15.—One fireman was overcome by smoke in a fire that caused $60,000 damage to a business and apartment block here at 5 a. m. today. Business houses damaged included the New Castle Drug Company, Anderson & Anderson, grocers; The New Way Plumbing Company and the Kroger Grocery.

TORNADO KILLS 36, HURTS 200

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 15.—(AP.)—A tornado which lashed the Tennessee-Kentucky border last night left a toll of 36 known dead and more than 200 injured in the wreckage of homes which marked its path from the Mississippi to the Cumberland Mountains.

Striking on the Arkansas and Missouri side of the Mississippi early in the night, the twister swept down on Nashville and then on to the East, spending its fury in a final burst of destruction near Kingsport and Rogersville, Tenn.

Through Lebanon, Harrogate and Jellico the storm marked its path of destruction, wrecking numerous smaller towns and villages as it went.

The list of dead grew slowly today as rescue workers dug in the wreckage of homes along the route of the twister.

Stars Give Up Luxuries After Film Pay Cut

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 15.—(INS.)—Hollywood economized with a smile today.

Movie stars, anxious to cooperate with producers to maintain production during a crucial period, have adjusted their private lives to meet temporarily reduced salaries.

Large homes and big automobiles have been shelved. Lunch and taxicab expenses have been cut down.

Among those who have moved into smaller residences are Sylvia Sydney, Frederic March and Adrienne Ames.

Wynne Gibson and Frances Dee have taken up sewing. Charles Ruggles is rolling his own cigarets. Jack Oakie, gay bachelor of filmland, has cut out sending flowers to his girl friends.

Helen Twelvetrees is doing her own marketing, and Claudette Colbert has cut down on buying books.

Heartened by the new wage agreement, production executives of the five major movie studios controlling the greater portion of the world's screen entertainment today launched ambitious schedules bringing employment to thousands of persons.

Cameras were grinding busily at Metro-Goldyn-Mayer, Warner-Brothers-First National, Paramount, and Radio, while at Fox seven new major movies will be started Monday.

INDIAN CHIEF SOBS STORY OF SLAYING

READING, Pa., March 15.—(AP.)—With tears steraming down his bronze cheeks, Chief Running Wolf, Apache Indian and leader of the Bonus Expeditionary Force, told a jury yesterday he could not recall having shot to death his wife.

The chief took the stand after he had received last-minute encouragement from Gen. Pelham Glassford, former chief of Washington police, who is to be a character witness for the Indian.

Glassford entered the court a few minutes before Running Wolf was called by the defense. The session was recessed while Glassford quietly spoke to the man who helped him last year in clearing 8,000 marching veterans from the Capitol plaza.

Running Wolf, who is an herb salesman widely known in this section, was calm as he began his story. He told of meeting his wife at the Anacostia camp and later bringing her to his home near Hamburg. With them came the woman's 4-year-old daughter.

He said the woman was insanely jealous and once fired three shots at him as he drove away to sell his remedies.

He told how she finally left him and became a waitress at the Blue Mountain filling station. He said he went there to plead with her to come home, and that she "rushed at him" after he threatened to have the place raided. The Chief declared he does not remember what followed. Sobbing, he said:

"I hit the floor. I lay there and groan. I am aside of her and I say, 'Morn, did I shoot you or did you shoot me.' I try to talk some more, something come in my mouth. Strausses (owner of the filling station) picks up the gun and says, 'Put this in the canal and blame it on the Indian.'"

The Chief was in court without his picturesque dress. Warden Clifford Dry, of the Berks County Prison, refused to allow him to leave the jail except in ordinary dress.

Earlier, five witnesses who were in the service station, testified to seeing the Indian fire the shots.

Unidentified Auto Victim in Hospital

An unidentified man, aged about 55, was struck by an automobile in Ardmore boulevard, Forest Hills, today and was taken to Columbia Hospital, where he was reported unconscious. Howard Barth, of 39 Parkview avenue, Oakland, who helped take the man to the hospital, said he had struck the victim when the latter dashed into the street suddenly from the curb. Barth said a wheel was broken from his automobile when he crashed into the curb in attempting to avoid striking the man.

Quake Jolt 'Cures' Paralyzed Woman

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lillian Jackson, 40-year-old widow, of Portland, Ore., whose hands and lower limbs were paralyzed, was flung from her chair in Long Beach by Friday's earthquake.

A moment later she fled from the residence and was walking along the beach without the aid of crutch or cane. Since then she has been able to use her limbs with considerable freedom.

2 Hurt When Auto Skids and Hits Pole

Two men were injured, one seriously, early today when the automobile in which they were riding skidded and hit a pole in West Ohio street. Charles Adolfson, 40, of 4208 Millgate street, a passenger in the car of William J. Tennyson, 23, of 7111 Monticello street, was detained in Allegheny General Hospital with a fractured skull, while Tennyson, treated at the hospital, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

Divorces Husband Missing 40 Years

CHICAGO, March 15.—(AP.)—Forty years after Henry Bacor, disappeared on his way to work as a guard at the Chicago Columbian Exposition of 1893, Mrs. Margaret Bacon, 72, obtained a divorce from him. The decree was granted yesterday by Circuit Judge Denis J. Normoyle on grounds of desertion.

LENITA LANE, 31

Los Angeles List Includes Name of Actress' Parent

In the latest official tabulation of the 116 deaths in the Southern California earthquake compiled by the Los Angeles County Coroner and Sheriff, Isabel Lane, believed to be a sister of James E. Lane, of 446 Cedarville street, Bloomfield, is included.

Isabel Lane is a name assumed by Mrs. Guy D. Leopold, 59, when accompanying her daughter on theatrical tours. Her husband, a former purchasing agent for the Edgewater Steel Company, Oakmont, is now employed in New York.

Miss Lenita Lane, 31, a daughter, two years ago was leading lady for the George Sharp Players in the Pitt Theater. She and her mother has been in Los Angeles since Christmas.

Mr. Lane and his New York relatives up to today had heard nothing from the actress or her mother.

Pay Fight Closing All Cleveland Movies

CLEVELAND, March 15.—(AP.)—Executives of all downtown motion picture theaters, including those with stage programs, announced today their theaters will close tomorrow night. The action followed a notice from stage hands and moving picture operators' unions they needed further time to consider a proposed 25 per cent wage reduction.

QUAKE VICTIMS SEEK U. S. AID

LONG BEACH, Cal., March 15.—(AP.)—While repercussions of last Friday's destructive earthquake continued in milder shocks, civic organizations of Long Beach today planned a concerted appeal to Congress to amend the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act to allow aid for restoring private dwellings.

The forty-second and forty-third tremors of the series, strong shocks apparently reaching all sections of the vast earthquake zone, were felt at 9:40 o'clock last night and at 3:14 a. m. today.

Representatives of civic organizations said that unless the Reconstruction Corporation act is amended, Long Beach must appeal to the nation through the Red Cross for approximately $25,000,000 to restore its private residences.

Congress already has agreed to appropriate $5,000,000 for victims of the earthquake, and the Red Cross has made an appeal for $500,000 for immediate relief.

BELLEVUE MAN COOK IN QUAKE

The first thing Ludwick H. Rudolph, 74, former Bellevue resident, did after the earthquake "billowed" his home in Long Beach, Cal., was to build a brick fireplace outdoors and serve hot coffee to hundreds who were driven from their homes, he relates in a letter to J. W. Pritchard, 766 Sherwood avenue. He cautions his friend:

"No matter what you read or hear about this mess, just multiply by hundreds. The earth billowed to and fro—bumped up and down, squashed and dilated, rocked and spumed."

But people have to be fed, even after a quake, he observes, and as gas and electricity were turned off, he built himself a fire and sat down to a breakfast of bacon and eggs and coffee while the earth was still trembling every five minutes.

IRON FIREMAN

LIBERTY BAKERY

ON FIRST YEAR'S FUEL BILL

These two Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burners were installed by Liberty Baking Company of Pittsburgh. The first year they saved $2830.09, or 43 per cent of the previous year's fuel bill. Liberty Bakery reports: "Handling of ashes cut almost two-thirds...we now have a clean stack...no longer violate smoke ordinances...cleaner boiler room, cleaner plant...surroundings free from soot...can always depend on steady steam ...our men are pleased."

Users now saving over $7,500,000 a year

If you pay fuel bills, profit by the experience of Liberty Baking Company. The Rush Machinery division of Dravo-Doyle Company, authorized Iron Fireman Pittsburgh dealer, offered to make a free survey of their fuel costs and boiler room operation. The survey revealed a pleasant surprise—an indicated saving of $2980 a year in fuel costs alone. Two Iron Fireman automatic coal burners were installed. The first year's operation showed a second pleasant surprise—an actual saving of $2830.09 or $750 more than the estimate. Liberty Bakery formerly used hand-fired coal. Where Iron Fireman coal firing replaces fuels other than coal, the savings are frequently greater.

Proportionate savings are likewise possible through Iron Fireman home units. Many home owners have found greater efficiency—greater economy possible through this proved type of fuel firing. One season's savings in fuel consumption have in many instances more than paid for the Iron Fireman home installation.

Sir Henry Thornton To Be Buried in Penna.

SIR HENRY THORNTON

A railroad engineering career that began in the drafting rooms of the Pennsylvania Railroad here and led to the post of general manager of England's largest system, the Great Eastern Railway, today was ended in the death of Sir Henry Thornton, 61, American-born industrialist.

Sir Henry, who resigned last year as president of the Canadian National Railways after 10 years' service, died yesterday in the Doctors' Hospital, New York. Death was due to pneumonia following an operation last week.

Burial will be at Newton, Buck's County, Pa., following funeral services tomorrow at St. Thomas' Chapel, New York, at 1:30 o'clock.

Born in Logansport, Ind., November 6, 1871, he was graduated in engineering at the University of Pennsylvania in 1894. As an athlete he was outstanding in football, shot-putting and walking.

In December, 1894, as a draftsman, he entered the office here of the chief engineer, Southwest system of the Lines West of Pittsburgh. Less than a year later he became assistant engineer of construction at Cambridge, O., for the Cleveland and Marietta Railroad, a Pennsylvania subsidiary.

He returned here in 1896 to become assistant in the engineer corps of what is now known as the Panhandle Division, but left the city again in 1897. He was made general superintendent of the Long Island Railroad in 1911.

When the English railways system suffered reverses, Sir Henry was called in 1914 to assume the post of general manager. English railroaders resented selection of an American. Opposition to Thornton reached the stage of an attempt to have him declared an undesirable alien.

He became a British subject in 1919, and later was made a Knight Commander, Order of British Empire. Recognition accorded his work during the war included appointments as commander, French Legion of Honor, and officer of the Order of Leopold by the King of Belgium, and an American Distinguished Service Medal.

He joined the Canadian Railways in 1922.

Sir Henry's first wife was Miss Virginia Dike Blair, of New Castle, whom he married in 1901. With Sir Henry when he died were a son and daughter of the marriage, James W. and Anne Thorton; his second wife, the former Martha Watriss, of New York, and her stepfather, Charles D. Wetmore.

Judge, Instructor Address Traders

Pittsburgher Safe In Coast Disaster

Max Armbruster, 30, is another Pittsburgher to survive the California quake, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Armbruster, 1101 Wheeler street, learned today.

Armbruster, a resident here for 21 years, went to Los Angeles in December to resume a position as accountant which he had lost some months earlier.

Playing Her Role In Sleep Brings Star's Death

LONDON, March 15.—(AP.)—Anny Ahlers, one of the outstanding actresses in Europe although she was only 26 years, old, who died last night, was understood to have come to her death as the result of a concussion suffered in a fall while sleep-walking.

The German actress, it was said, had long been a somnambulist. Recently her maid said she had saved her as she was about to climb through a bedroom window while asleep.

In the first act of "The Du Barry," in which she had been starring here, she climbed through a window onto a balcony.

CHINESE RENEW JAP ATTACKS

TOKIO, March 15.—(INS.)—Chinese troops at Hsifeng Pass in the Great Wall today renewed their attacks on the Japanese positions there, according to military advices received here.

Officials declared the fighting greatly endangered the situation along the Great Wall, and might cause the Japanese to throw a combined artillery, infantry and airplane assault against China proper, to the south.

Maj. Gen. Heijiro Hattori's Japanese troops were reported to have joined in the hostilities with machine guns, rifles, planes and field guns after the Japanese post had suffered heavy casualties.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I don't know what additional authority Roosevelt may ask, but give it to him, even if it's to drown all the boy babies, for the way the grown-up ones have acted, he will be perfectly justified in drowning any new ones. So viva Roosevelt, and banzai everything. It just shows you what a country can do when you take their affairs out of the hands of Congres. Yours, WILL.

DOCTOR SUING ANOTHER LOSES

Dr. H. P. Kohberger, Negley avenue, who sued Dr. Lloyd W. Johnson for damages for injuries suffered when he was struck by the latter's automobile, lost the verdict yesterday. The case was tried before Judge Thomas M. Marshall.

After the accident, in Negley avenue, June 27, 1930, both physicians testified, Dr. Johnson assisted Dr. Kohberger to his home and called on him for several days.

Dr. Kohberger asked $25,000 damages.

Judge Marshall, presiding in the assignment room of Common Pleas Court, heard the case in the small hearing room to speed the work of the courts. He had nine jury cases in progress in as many rooms, including his own.

COURT SALARY STAND SCORED

The refusal by Judges of Common Pleas, Orphans' and County courts to reduce salaries of tipstaves and criers has drawn the fire of Commissioners C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr. Both expressed disappointment that the Judges failed to follow the general county reduction.

McGovern said:

"If that's the position they take, I'll do my best to see that no raises are given them in the future. It's a shame that these people take advantage of the law."

The salaries of the tipstaves and criers are fixed by the Judges, within a maximum set by statute.

Judge R. A. Kennedy, of County Court, notified the Commissioners that salaries of other court attaches had been cut an average of about 10 per cent.

WRITS GRANTED IN 12 DRY CASES

After final hearings yesterday in injunction suits brought by prohibition authorities against 14 places in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania, decrees were granted in 12 cases. Two were dismissed.

A drinking room on the second floor, Wolfendale Hotel, 207 Federal street, North Side, was ordered "padlocked" for a year. Other decisions granting decrees allowed owners of the properties to remain in possession by posting bonds.

Among the latter owners were New Castle Lodge, No. 51, L. O. O. M.; German Beneficial Union, District No. 56, New Castle; Carrick Aeria, No. 1520, F. O. E., 2122 Brownsville road; the "Hole in the Wall," Kane, McKean County, and "Maple Villa," east of Kane.

Cases against the first floor of a building at 43 Tunnel street, owned by John Fugassi, and the second and third floors, 1424 Fifth avenue, were dismissed.

Coyne's Brother Gives Bond for Eight

Bonds for the eight alleged brick throwers who waived hearing for court before Alderman Luke Sullivan have been posted by Tom Coyne, who was indicted as a proprietor of the Monaca Club. Coyne, a brother of Senator James J. Coyne, gave the eight bonds of $500 each on his house in North Craig street, valued at $18,000, on which he said there was an $8,000 encumbrance. The eight are accused of hurling bricks through the windows of Sullivan's office at 3404 Penn avenue in a "Strip" political feud.

Alderman Selected To Succeed Cermak

CHICAGO, March 15.—(AP.)—A veteran politician, pledged to uphold the policies of the martyred Anton J. Cermak, today was at the helm of the affairs of the nation's second city.

He is Alderman Frank J. Corr, 56, member of the City Council, who was elected last night as Mayor pro tempore by the Council following a bitter debate, climaxed by refusal of his opponent, Alderman John S. Clark, and 15 adherents to participate in the election.

County May Give Ex-Employes Work

To provide for county employes dismissed to go on pension during recent budget sessions, the County Commissioners are attempting to set up a special payroll to re-employed them until action is taken on the pension bill before the Legislature.

Payments from the present pension fund, declared virtually bankrupt, have been suspended under a moratorium.

Thirty members of the Men's Glee Club of the University of Pittsburgh will participate in the Intercollegiate Glee Club contest, Friday, in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia. Among other schools competing will be the University of Pennsylvania, Penn State, Temple University, Bucknell University and Lafayette College. Dr. Walter H. Wright is the director of the Pitt organization.

KNIFE HURLING BRINGS DIVORCE

Angry because he took his revolver from her, his wife threw a butcher knife which just missed him, Wilbert U. Willetts, of 173 Limasco street, testified in seeking a divorce from Laura Eva Willetts, which was granted by Judge John P. Egan.

Willetts told the court he and his wife had separated several times over the late hours she kept. After one separation, he said, she admitted she had made a mistake and he set up another home for her. The final parting came, he said, when she explained an absence by saying she had visited a sister, who told Willetts his wife had not arrived.

DELAY MEASURE FOR CRISS JOB

An amendment to the school code to allow N. R. Criss to become solicitor for the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education upon resigning as a board member has been prepared by State Senator Morris Einstein, it was reported today.

Einstein was said to be delaying submission of the measure pending some assurance as to the outcome of conferences held Saturday, in which Taylor Allderdice and other school board members sought support for it from Republican State Chairman Edward Martin and State Senator James J. Coyne. Einstein, it was said, has been in possession of the amendment for three weeks.

History Teachers To Confer Here

Several hundred instructors of history in Western Pennsylvania elementary and high schools and colleges are expected to attend the fourth annual history conference Saturday, sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh. Meetings will be held in the Western Pennsylvania Historical building and the Heinz House, Pitt campus center. "The Teaching of European History," will be the theme of the all-day conference.

North Side Man Hit-Run Victim

Peter Pintos, 60, of 200 Anderson street, was in the Allegheny General Hospital today a victim of a hit-run automobile driver. Police said Pintos was struck as he crossed Anderson street near his home. Witnesses gave police the license number of the automobile, said to be owned by a resident of Butler.

CHECKS MAILED FOR HEARST DIVIDENDS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14. — Dividend checks of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., covering the eleventh consecutive quarterly cash payment, were in the mails today destined for the thousands of investors owning Hearst Class "A" 7 per cent preferred shares. The dividend is payable March 15 to shareholders of record March 1 last.

This dividend as usual is being paid out of current earnings and funds for the disbursement have been on deposit for a number of weeks.

As a special service and in order to avoid any inconvenience for Hearst Consolidated shareholders that are residents of Michigan, the Detroit Times, a subsidiary of the company, will accept and cash all Hearst Class "A" 7 per cent preferred dividend checks for those living in that state.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., continues to stand out as one of the few ranking major corporations in the United States that has maintained dividends and interest on all public financing throughout the depression. The Hearst organization has safely weathered seven economic depressions since its inception, with an illuminating record of unabated progress.

With the expected turn for the better in general conditions, Hearst Consolidated is in an exceptionally strong position to join the vanguard of industry in leading the way back to business normalcy.

ALIMONY ASKED BY WIFE, SUED

Mrs. Irene A. Ryan, Cedar boulevard, Mt. Lebanon, whose husband, Clarence E. Ryan, 1194 Cedar boulevard, has sued her for divorce, has filed a petition asking alimony, asserting her husband has an income of $25,000 a year.

Through her counsel, Louis Little, she said she and her two daughters, 15 and 16, were without funds. She denied her husband's charges of cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities.

Divorce suits were filed by Frieda Flowers against Clarence Flowers, and by Edna Blakeney against Albert Blakeney.

City's Milk Bottle Loss Totals $600,000

Fifteen million milk bottles disappear in the Pittsburgh area yearly, representing a money loss of $600,000, according to the announced program of the Greater Pittsburgh Milk Dealers' Association to influence the return of these bottles to the stores and dealers.

Peter P. Carney has been re-elected president of this organization for the fourth time, the announcement says. Other officers are Ray Cronoweth, vice president; Paul Martin, secretary, and Joseph Taylor, treasurer.

Contractor Leaves $103,000 to Widow

In a will written on an ordinary sheet of paper, George H. Abel, Jr., late contractor, leaves his $103,000 estate to his widow, Mary Julia, Abel, 1418 Severn stret. The will, filed for probate today, specifies that at Mrs. Abel's death one-half of the estate goes to any of Mr. Abel's surviving sisters. If none survive, his nieces and a nephew inherit their share.

Carl E. Johannes, of Dormont, leaves his $9,600 estate to his widow, Mrs. Annette Johannes. At her death, a daughter, Ruth, receives the estate.

POLITICS

Sunday Ball Defeat McClure Reprisal?

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, March 15.—Political Harrisburg still is wondering what happened to the blue law repeal bill which would have permitted the playing of baseball and the indulgence in other outdoor sports on Sunday. There is little doubt anywhere but what politics had something to do with defeat of the bill, as politics has something to do with practically everything which happens in Harrisburg.

Mr. Shields

Chief interest surrounds the vote of Senator John J. McClure against the bill, as had McClure voted for it two other Senators would have followed suit, resulting in passage.

One explanation of the McClure vote is that the Delaware County Senator was incensed at criticism in liberal newspapers of his attitude on the utility situation, and took this opportunity of getting even with his detractors. Another explanation was that Senator McClure had followed Republican State Chairman Edward Martin's middle-of-the-road course on this subject, as he straddled with Martin on the prohibition question in Chicago at the national convention last summer.

* * *

Steedle Bill Still Confronts Senate

This McClure denied, but it is a fact that his vote against the blue law repealer was amazing to those backing the measure. He had been counted on as an affirmative vote, and as his following it was expected that Senators Owlett and Rice would fall in line, giving the bill a sufficient number of votes to pass.

Political by-play still is proceeding on the bill, with a possibility of reconsideration. If that is not accomplished, the Senate will have before it the Steedle bill for local option observance on blue laws. There is a disposition to amend the Steedle bill to make it apply only to outdoor sports when it reaches the Senate.

Meanwhile blue law revisionists will attempt to obtain at least one convert. Two would be better, but one would be sufficient, as it is understood that in the event of a tie vote Lieut. Gov. Shannon would vote to permit Sunday baseball.

* * *

Withdrawal of King Nomination Unlikely

In the spirit of consistency Gov. Pinchot yesterday asked the Senate to permit him to withdraw the nomination of Dr. Clyde L. King as a member of the Public Service Commission.

But it is not expected the nomination will be withdrawn. The Senate Executive Nominations Committee, which has the King nomination, and to which the Governor's request of yesterday was referred, presumably will do nothing in the circumstances. That means that Dr. King will continue as chairman of the commission, and he has, as he said yesterday, "only begun to fight."

* * *

King Balked Democrat Invasion, Capital Hears

Today the story was afloat that one basis of difference between the Governor and King was refusal of the latter to permit a ripping up of the personnel of the commission to provide places for Democrats.

Joseph F. Guffey, who obtained from the Governor appointment of two Democrats to the Pittsburgh Registration Commission this week, is also understood to have had some able Democratic patriots he wished to place in the Public Service Commission offices.

The Governor is reported to have favored the Guffey demands, and presented them to King, who as chairman has command of all personnel.

King is reported to have been satisfied with the performance of his employes, and flatly put his foot down on the proposal to make the Commission the medium of payment of contracted political debts, under which the Governor intended to make return for Democratic legislative votes for his program.

Dog Owners Warned To Obtain Licenses

Dog owners who fail to obtain a 1933 license immediately are liable for a fine or have their pets taken to the city pound, according to announcement yesterday by License Collector Louis Weil. The absence of a collar, it was said, is taken as evidence no license has been purchased.

SIGN PAINTERS WAIT BEER

Pittsburgh considers President Roosevelt's beer message as good as law.

Albert Cook, of 57 South Tenth street, who painted many beer signs before the days of prohibition, today said he already has several orders for signs to be used as soon as Congress legalizes beer.

At Grant street and Third avenue, Charles Lindquist is painting beer signs on windows. Several downtown sandwich shops are showing signs that read:

"Leave orders here for the famous Mumm's extra-dry champagne. A case of 12 quarts delivered when the law permits."

P. R. R. PAYING $400,000 HERE

Approximately $400,000 in dividends was being disbursed in the Pittsburgh district today by the Pennsylvania Railroad, this section's share of the $6,583,848 dividend. The dividend is 1 per cent on the 13,167,696 outstanding $50 par value shares, to the 249,778 stockholders, of whom 107,981 are women.

This is the largest number of individual stockholders ever to share in the company's disbursements. Ninety-seven per cent of the money is distributed in the United States. Prior to the World War the foreign holders approximated 15 per cent.

Pittsburgh's share in the dividend is about half of the $868,000 spread over the territory covered by the Cleveland Federal Reserve district, according to A. J. County, vice president, in charge of finance.

BUILD 'GATES' FOR DAM HERE

Eight huge cylindrical intake gates for the Hoover Dam will be built at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, giving employment to 200 men for six months, according to announcement by the company today.

Each of the cylinders will be 32 feet in diameter and will weigh 240 tons. Because of their great size they will be made in electric arc weld segements and shipped to the dam, where they will be assembled. The contract is said to be one of the largest electric welding projects ever attempted.

The gigantic Hoover Dam, in the Colorado River, is designed to control floods, provide irrigation development and water supply for cities and towns in Southern California and generate electric power.

February Traffic Life Toll Decreases

There was a marked decrease in the number of traffic fatalities and accidents in Pittsburgh for February as compared with the same month last year, according to a report today by Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer. There were four motor vehicle fatalities last month as compared with 17 for February last year.

PICK EDMONDS TO SUCCEED EATON

Of Dr. King, Eaton charges:

"He was out of sympathy with the investigation and evidenced an utter misconception of his duties as a Public Service Commissioner. His sympathies were entirely with the utility companies; he resented inquiries made as to the method in which the Public Service Commission had conducted the business. His professed ignorance of what has been accomplished since he became head of the Commission proved conclusively his utter incompetence.

"When called to the witness stand, instead of co-operating he proceeded with brazenness to tell the committee that there was no need for a further investigation. Whether he was seeking to conceal matters which would have been detrimental to the utility interests we can not say.

"Dr. King is absolutely unfit. As long as he remains at the head of this body proper utility regulation is hopeless.

PARTIAL SUPPORT

"Some members of the committee have offered sympathetic support and assistance. We were not only entitled to the support of a part of the committee but of the entire committee, including its present chairman (Mr. McClure).

"This investigation should go on in the interest of the people . . . to obtain for them redress of the wrongs inflicted by utility companies."

Eaton charged that he and his associate counsel were "beset with obstructions and indifference" and complained that the first Senate committee insisted, after certain revelations, that subpenas could be issued only with the consent of the committee chairman.

He told of urging the committee to early action but meeting with little response.

It was Dr. King's testimony that he felt no further need existed for an investigation which precipitated Eaton's resignation and a break between Pinchot and King.

EDMONDS ACTIVE

Eaton's successor, Mr. Edmonds, long has been active in politics, first as an Independent, later as a Republican. He sponsored the 1926 state teachers' salary act which bears his name.

With the announcement of his selection, Chairman McClure promised to "vigorously continue" the investigation.

The bill reappropriating $100,000 to finance the inquiry will be up for second reading next Monday. This is the appropriation which was delayed for two months while Eaton was chief counsel and today's action was an about-face for Senator Harry B. Scott, chairman of the Appropriations Committee. Scott has held the resolution in committee.

BANKING CODE HEARING SET

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(AP.)—The proposed State Banking Department code will be discussed at a public hearing next Tuesday before the Senate Banking Committee.

Senator Andrew J. Sordoni, Luzerne, chairman of the committee, said today:

"Owing to the importance of the proposed codification of laws relative to banking and building and loan associations in Pennsylvania, the Senate committee in charge of the bills has arranged for a hearing next Tuesday, March 21, at 2 p. m. for discussion of the Department of Banking code.

"It is probable there will be later hearings on the banking code. The building and loan code is now being given close study by members of the committee. It has not been determined as yet if a public hearing will be held.

"There is a possibility the members of the House committee in charge of these bills will sit with us in joint hearing."

Yankee Iron Man Scores Kayoes All Over World

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The American dollar is fighting its way around the world. It knocked the whiskers off the English pound, walloped the franc and sat the Spanish peseta bowlegged.

It is now a veteran of the foreign wars. It broke even with the German mark and also got a draw with the Polish zloty.

Down in the Argentine, it smacked the peso curly. It proves that the American iron man is the world's most respected tourist.

It is the Army, Navy and also the Marines of finance. We don't know much about foreign exchange. To us it is a lot of nutmeg juice. But we do know the world still tips its hat to the glorious American bird and bows twice to the double eagle.

That is concrete confidence of the most reinforced kind. The old Yank gold button is a cornerstone they like to dedicate every day. It's a very tasty dish.

During the sunny banking hours it navigates the seven seas. And at twilight the happy little sailor comes home to roost.

Steedle Sunday Measure Meets Delay in House

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, March 15.—Efforts to pass in the House the Steedle Bill providing for local option on Sunday Blue Laws have been delayed until Monday night.

Representative Joseph G. Steedle, McKees Rocks, author of the measure, today explained that the absence of many proponents of the bill made it advisable to wait until next week.

Prospects of passage in the House are bright, though the Steedle Bill may get fewer votes than the Schwartz Bill, killed yesterday in the Senate.

As the Steedle Bill now reads, local option is provided on all forms of Sunday amusement, while the Schwartz Bill applied only to outdoor sports.

Blue law revisionists over the week end will attempt to have one of the 26 senators who voted against the Schwartz Bill change his stand and move Monday night to reconsider the proposal. A change of one vote would bring a tie, in which event Lieut. Gov. Edward Shannon, portrayed as a friend of the bill, would vote to make it law.

LABOR OPPOSES BUREAU SLASH

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(AP.)—Changes in the Department of Labor and Industry, as proposed by the Sterling committee on finances, are opposed by John A. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor.

He said yesterday a 50 per cent personnel cut in the Factory Inspection Bureau "is simply out of the question" and that abolition of the Bureau of Industrial Relations "would rob tens of thousands of poor devils of workers through the state of their one hope for an opportunity to approach to their employers and consideration of their grievances."

Phillips asserted the mediators of the Relations Bureau "are constantly settling small strikes." He said "the attack by the Sterling report of the present activities of the bureau in collecting unpaid wages for thousands of helpless employes is simply incredible."

PINCHOT URGES PENSION BILL

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today urged immediate action on at least one of five bills before the General Assembly providing for state-wide old-age pensions.

The Governor asserted that lack of action by the present Legislature would make the state ineligible for old age pension Legislation for five more years. He said:

"To delay another five years would be inexcusable."

An old age pension statute, passed 10 years ago, was declared unconstitutional. A later amendment to the Constitution was passed in 1925, but was defeated in 1927.

Penna. Women Urge Relief and Economy

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(AP.)—Immediate steps to provide unemployment relief and to cut government costs were urged upon the General Assembly by the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women.

Later, yesterday, a committee called upon Gov. Pinchot and Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, to stress the urgency of the relief and economy situation.

Mortgage Relief Studied by Senate

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(INS.)—Designed to aid the mortgaged home owner by giving him more time to make payments rather than surrender property, the state building and loan code received consideration of a Senate committee yesterday.

The proposed code enables financially embarrassed associations to charge down assets so that the loss will fall equally on all shareholders while the association is permitted to work out its own problems.

TALBOT RELIEF BILL REPORTED FOR PASSAGE

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(AP.)—The Legislature attacked routine business today as Republican organization leaders studied the House committee's $25,000,000 unemployment relief program.

Gov. Pinchot, who Monday night criticized the Assembly for delay on enacting relief, offered no comment on the plans submitted as an alternative to his $20,000,000 proposal. He said:

"Just as soon as I get my head above water I will begin to study it."

PINCHOT TO STAY

The Governor said he would remain in Harrisburg over the week-end.

The new Talbot bill, which appropriates $22,000,000 for relief as part of the House committee plan, was reported today for passage.

It allocates $2,000,000 to the State Emergency Relief Board for April and May and appropriates the remaining $20,000,000 to local poor districts for relief for June, 1933, to May, 1935.

The Senate gave its attention to bills on second reading. It sent the McClure (Delaware) public utility omnibus bill back to the Judiciary General Committee for further study.

Both branches adjorned until next Monday night, Speaker Grover Talbot abandoning his plan for a Thursday session.

An employment relief measure authorizing the Department of Agriculture to purchase land to be used for relief purposes was recommitted to committee on the motion of its sponsor, Senator Frank J. Harris, Allegheny.

HOUSE PASSES BILLS

The House today passed the first two educational bills of the session. They are:

McClure (Allegheny) permitting school districts to include rental of buildings in estimating the cost of tuition.

Simon (Clinton), appropriating $3,500,000 to state teachers' colleges, for the next biennium and granting trustees of the schools exclusive power of management and purchasing.

The McClure bill had no opposition. The only negative vote on the Simon bill was cast by Representative Hiram G. Andrews, Cambria.

HOUSE HURRIES REPEAL BILL

HARRISBURG, March 15.—The House today passed on first reading the McClure Senate bill providing for the election of 51 delegates to a constitutional convention which will pass upon proposed repeal of the eighteenth amendment. One delegate would be elected from each of the 34 congressional districts and 17 at-large.

The House committee amended the bill, making it mandatory that the delegates be elected in connection with the regular general election next November.

The House received a convention measure which reflects proposals of united dry leaders of Pennsylvania. The new convention bill provides for election of 208 delegates from legislative districts and retains provisions for naming the delegates from two sets of candidates, those favoring or opposing repeal of the prohibition amendment.

REALTORS OPEN TAX FIGHT

HARRISBURG, March 5.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Real Estate Association today had fired the opening gun of its battle to transfer the tax burden from real estate to incomes.

It called upon the Legislature yesterday to enact immediately a flat state income tax, revenues from which would be divided equally between unemployment relief and schools.

A companion bill was proposed to force school districts to reduce taxes in direct ratio with the money received from the tax.

Several speakers supporting the income tax proposal viewed its enactment as "impossible" at present, but urged the association to fight for the levy to awaken interest and active support of home owners and renters who are affected indirectly by heavy real estate taxes.

Pittsburgh Advertising Bills Pass House

HARRISBURG, March 15.—The House late yesterday passed finally the bill of Representative Spann, Allegheny, permitting Pittsburgh City Council to advertise ordinances of that body only one time. The vote was 118 to 59. It now goes to the Senate.

A companion measure, also sponsored by Spann, abolishing the advertising of delinquent taxes in Pittsburgh, was approved by the House by 116 to 51.

The fight on the first measure was led by Representative Kane. There was no opposition voiced on the floor to the second bill. Kane declared:

"We will need more light instead of less light on public affairs in Pittsburgh. There is a move on the part of the political powers in Pittsburgh to try and prevent publicity on public affairs."

Kane questioned the motives behind the bill. Its sponsor said:

"This is an economy measure. It has no ulterior or hidden motive. It permits the publication of these ordinances once instead of twice. It will save the taxpayers $50,000 a year."

Kane told the House that the Republican organization in Pittsburgh was having "its difficulties with the papers of the city." He declared the organization was threatening to force the newspapers "into line."

LASTEX

King Solomon said there was nothing new under the sun, but he had never seen Lastex. The earliest men envied the animals their sleek, warm coats; but when they tried to convert them to their own use, they found them dead and disappointing. Now at last, man has achieved a yarn with the flexibility of living flesh. It may be interwoven with any other material, combining the elasticity of one and the appearance of the other. It has already found its way into many forms of apparel. Some of its most effective uses are shown this week for the first time in Pittsburgh by Miss Marjorie Bridger, Lastex representative.

Disloyal Wives Not Always Entirely to Blame

Can a bad girl "come back?

"Holding-the-Bag" thinks he has the answer to that question—and it's "No!"

Why does he think so? He married a girl like that, and—But here's the whole story. Read it for yourself.

Dear Miss Robinson:

Reading your article about "bad girls" getting good, I am forced to express my opinion—and I should know something about it, since I married one of them. In the first place, no girl "goes bad" unless she wants to. Girls know the difference between right and wrong. And nine out of ten of them will go back to their "racket" in the end.

I didn't use to think that. I met a girl, by accident, whom I had known when she was very young. I hadn't seen her for several years, but I knew that she had been a "bad girl." She was supposed to have reformed, however. So six months after I met her, we were married.

She solemnly promised to love no one but me, and I know I can never love anyone else as I loved her. I had a good position. I had many friends, a number of them people of importance. After I married her, I broke contact with everyone and everything, and devoted my life to making her comfortable and happy.

Five years after we were married, we were blessed with a beautiful baby girl. Then the trouble started. Her mother advised her to "step out and enjoy herself while she was young." Her girl friends started calling for her, coaxing her to go to parties and dances, sometimes at men's apartments, sometimes at dives. And she went!

HAPPINESS ENDED

Our baby died as the result of her neglect, and she didn't even feel sorry, so it seemed, but declared that now she could go where she pleased and do what she pleased. I didn't know at that time that she was going to run out on me, but that was what she did.

Now she seems to be enjoying herself, without a care or a worry. Good clothes, jewelry, and now, I hear, a little car. We were married in a church that doesn't allow divorce, so I cannot get one; but in spite of that she tells everyone that she is "married again." So she goes—while I, a fool as ever, have turned into a confirmed rummy from what she did to me. Something I never did till she acted the way she did was to get blind drunk; but now I do, and I have nothing—no friends, no job, no home.

Marrying her kind of girl, and believing in her, turned me from a respectable citizen into a bum.

I hope this will answer your question about Can a Bad Girl Come Back.

HOLDING THE BAG.

Yes, probably you do, son; but, as a matter of fact, you might as well say that one drop of water makes an ocean as to say that one reformed sinner who goes back to her sin—if this one has—proves that they all will do it.

PARTLY TO BLAME

As a matter of fact, I suspect that you, yourself, were partly to blame for what happened to you. You say that you "believed in her"—and yet the minute you married her, you "broke contact" with all your friends and tried to shut her and yourself up in the narrow cellar of your own life.

You didn't believe in her or love her or trust her enough to make her part of the happy, normal life you had known before you married her. You tried to shut her off, away from the world of contacts that you feared—into a life of unhealthy isolation. No wonder she got fed up and walked out!

She may have been callous cruel. Her mother may have been a busybody. But you made your mistakes, too, Big Boy! And now that they've come home to roost, you want to lay the blame for your own weakness and cussedness on her.

You may have made a good start, son; but no woman with any spirit, no matter how "good" she was, could have stood being shut out of the world as you yourself say you shut her out.

Fay King Puzzles Over Why Successful Men Change Wives

I DON'T DOUBT FOR AN INSTANT THAT YOU WISH TO BE A GREAT SUCCESS!
MAYBE YOU AN' I OUGHT TO GET MARRIED AND YOU'D HELP ME ATTAIN THAT SUCCESS YOU SPEAK OF?
DO YOU THINK FOR ONE MOMENT YOU'D BE WHERE YOU ARE NOW WITHOUT MY HELPING YOU WHEN I DID?
MEN DO NOT LIKE TO FEEL OBLIGATED TO ANY WOMAN
A SECOND WIFE SHARES HIS REAL SUCCESS
FAY King

By FAY KING

So numerous are the famous men who have remarried after their success that it is no trouble at all to call several to mind instantly.

The wives they married when they were in the first throes of ambition and who slaved and sacrificed much to help them onward to success have long been discarded, and second, or even third wives share the now brilliant spotlight with them.

Why is this? Were these first marriages made more with an eye to the advancement they might make with such encouragement and devotion? Did these wives become too aware of all they had done to help their husbands, and remind them of it too frequently? Do men turn from wives who help them too much?

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Way They Have in Paris

Yesterday I discussed, briefly, the rapidly increasing vogue of Contract in France and pointed out that Paris still has much to learn from New York in methods of bidding. It is equally true that it has much to learn as regards correct play. As an example, take the following hand, played at Contract in Paris recently, which illustrates that the capital of France has borrowed from us, among other things, an inclination for psychic bids.

South, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable; part-score 60.

North and South not vulnerable.

	♠ 9 ♡ A 10 7 4 2 ◇ 10 7 6 ♣ K Q 9 4
♠ 8 ♡ Q 8 6 5 ◇ A Q 9 8 5 ♣ 10 6 5	North West East South	♠ A K J 2 ♡ K J 9 3 ◇ J 4 3 ♣ 8 3
	♠ Q 10 7 6 5 4 3 ♡ — ◇ K 2 ♣ A J 7 2

When South dealt, according to my French correspondent, he realized the dangers of the situation and reasoned that if he started the bidding he might conceal the defensive weakness of his hand and possibly buy the contract for a bid of one or prevent his opponents, who might be very strong, from bidding game.

On this basis, he opened the hand with one club, a purely psychic bid, as the hand contains only 2 honor-tricks plus, and, if it is to be bid at all, should be bid with the long suit in spades. West, given the opportunity to overcall at the range of one, bid a diamond, a rather weak Overcall, vulnerable, but perhaps he knew South's propensities for weak Openings. North raised the clubs to two, although he might better have bid hearts, and East, encouraged by her partner's Overcall, bid two spades. South then faced somewhat of a dilemma. He reasoned that if he doubled, his adversaries would almost certainly switch to hearts, for North could not hold a biddable heart suit, otherwise he would have called it in preference to raising the clubs. Perhaps he forgot that he could easily pass and let East and West, who were vulnerable, find their own way out. However, he selected a third horn of the dilemma and decided to bid three spades, reasoning that his partner would understand that he really wished to play the hand at spades and that he was not requesting him to bid further. West and North passed, but my correspondent tells me that East, who was a very downright young lady and a courageous bidder, remarked:

"I don't understand! I bid spades."

To which South replied mildly: "Perhaps you will understand presently."

East's response to this was a snappy Double.

West found some difficulty in selecting a lead. Finally he decided that his partner must anticipate a diamond lead on the basis of his bid of that suit, so he opened with the Ace of diamonds, which established the King in the South hand. After this nothing mattered, as South's contract of three was safe. He entered the Dummy with a club and led a small spade, successfully finessing the Ten. At this point East's spade holding was obvious and South proceeded to make his contract, East winning only the three high trumps.

West's choice of an Opening lead was, no doubt, difficult. It is, of course, obvious that the lead of any other suit must have brought defeat, as whenever East secured the lead, the lead of the diamond Knave would have given to the defending side 2 tricks in diamonds and 3 tricks in trumps.

I am not giving this hand as an example of sound bidding or sound play. It is interesting simply as an exhibit in current history in the growth of the game which has already captured the imagination of Americans and English against the deep-rooted prejudice of the French in favor of Plafond, a game similar to Contract, but lacking many of the features which make Contract so tremendously fascinating. From our standards, both the bidding and play are amazing; almost obscure.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♠ A J 5 2 ♡ A 10 7 3 ◇ 9 ♣ K Q 6 5

Answer—One club, a shaded bidable suit. This bid is much to be preferred to an Opening major suit or notrump bid because of the weakness of the two major suits in the former case and the 4-4-4-1 distribution in the latter.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When shaping finger nails file from the outer side to the center, grind off the point. Be careful not to gouge into the flesh. Cuticle about the nail is susceptible to infection.

Hair smooth and straight at the back isn't friendly to this season's millinery. The wave should extend to the nape of the neck, with ends curled upward. The shingle and the long bob have been retired after long service. They've earned a rest, been dreadfully overworked.

To remodel eyebrows requires discrimination and a knowledge of line. The satanic slant, an upward progress from the inner end to the outer, is incongruous on the sweet young thing with the baby face, but one sees it everywhere. The most graceful form is that of the wing of a bird in flight, a slight upward curve, a downward sweep. The sisterhood has gone somewhat dippy on eyebrow shapings. It will pass.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge, Fearful of Dicky's Anger, Seeks to Turn Back

My promise to Dicky thrust its head up from my memory and though I was wildly tempted to thrust it back again, for I wanted nothing so much as to go up the winding trail, along which we were following Henner-y, I made one last effort to heed my husband's last mandate to me before he started upon his part of this perilous adventure.

Edging close to Lee Chow, I touch him upon the arm.

"Will not Mary and I be a hindrance to you?" I murmured. "We can find our way back if you wish."

"I am sorry—no," he said with decision. "True, I do not need you for the trail. I can find that. But for another reason, it is necessary that you be with me. Please do not talk. No unnecessary sound should be heard from me."

Silenced, but more bewildered than ever, I fell back with Mary. One thing was certain. We were not hindering Lee Chow, fleet and tireless he once had been, as I knew well from my never-to-be-forgotten experience with him when he, Lillian and I were in quest of Hugh Grantland. But either age, or the effects of the poison which had entered his finger from the concealed dart in the hidden envelope of Marion's lock box, had slowed his faculties. I found it easy to keep up with him and Hen-ner-y, who, however, was much quicker of movement than I had judged him, and I knew that Mary, given her head, would have outstripped us all.

MADGE PUZZLED

He did not need me for the trail, but for another reason. What other reason? Why? I rang the changes on the questions until I felt actually dizzy. Then a fantastic answer to my query hurled itself at me, and I felt as I imagine a boxer does in taking the count.

Whether from Hugh's lips in talking over the plans for rescue, or from his own fancy, had he evolved the idea that Hugh wished me to join this expedition? If he had, I knew that nothing in heaven or earth would move him from his determination to carry out Hugh's wishes.

Of course I knew that Lee Chow's feeling for Hugh was not that of a faithful and adoring servant for a master, although the high-born Chinese had played that role for years during the time that his appearance in his own proper person would have cost him his capture and death by torture at the hands of his enemies among his own countrymen. But I also knew that the bond between the two men was of the kind immortalized by Damon and Pythias and David and Jonathan. Hugh's devotion to Lee Chow, however would never carry him to the lengths of ruthlessness that I guessed were latent in this keen Oriental mind, so hard of understanding by anyone of the Western Hemisphere.

HIDDEN MYSTERIES

"Never the two shall meet," I quoted to myself, the memory of the words making more distinct a nebulous sort of terror that had come to me as the corollary of my fantastic guess concerning Lee Chow's mandate that I must not return. Another memory was strong upon me now, that of the aged Chinese who had been so nearly done to death by the bandits of his own race who were on the trail of Marion's lock box. He had insisted that I only should read a certain message to him because I "belonged to Lee Chow's boss man." Was it possible that Lee Chow himself shared that opinion? He knew, I was sure, of Hugh's hopeles love for me, and I suddenly was not sure of his reaction to that knowledge. In the hidden mysteries of his Oriental mind was there some latent scheme for making Hugh's long-cherished, but hopeless dream come true?

I felt a sudden unreasoning terror of that silent figure stalking along before me. The impulse to turn and run was strong upon me. But before I could act upon that impulse even if I could have yielded to it—which I doubted—a voice at the side of our path spoke menacingly from the darkness.

"Stand still if you want to see another daylight."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

At a Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received an invitation to a tea. I have never before attended a tea, so do not know what to expect or do. I do not know anyone who will be there, except the one in whose honor the tea is given. I have never met the hostess. Naturally, I feel sort of backward about going, especially as I have never gone out much in company.

1—Is there anything special one does or says on arriving?

2—It is from 4 to 6 o'clock. Must one be there at 4 and stay until 6 o'clock? S.

Don't, I beg you, hesitate about going to this tea, for it is such charming social contacts as this that will get you over your self-consciousness about mingling with people.

1—When you arrive you will be shown or directed to a room where you leave your wrap. Then you come to the room where the hostess and the guest of honor are receiving. First greet the hostess, saying: "How do you do, Mrs. Allen. It was so nice of you to invite me this afternoon." If the guest of honor is standing near the hostess, she probably will quickly introduce you to the hostess. You chat a minute or two with each, and then either one will introduce you to the group standing near.

When you leave you go first to your hostess, tell her what a happy time you have had, and say goodbye to her and to the guest of honor.

2—No. Go at any time that you wish between those hours, and stay for as long as you wish. For instance it would be well to arrive about 5 o'clock and leave at 5:30 or so.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Use Plenty of Soap and Water

Dr. Copeland

Recently I addressed a group of mothers interested in hygiene and the simple rules of health.

One of the questions asked me was, "What is a good disinfectant?"

I know of many useful chemical agents, but I can think of no better method of disinfection than the liberal use of warm water and soap. Disinfectants and antiseptics are of value when applied to furniture, walls and bedding, but few of them can be used on the skin because of the irritation they produce. Of course this is a general statement and your doctor will advise you as to the choice of a safe disinfectant.

When using a soap, bear in mind that a pure, non-irritating soap is best. Pure soap used with warm water keeps the pores of the skin clean and permits the normal excretion of sweat and poisonous waste products.

Of course plenty of "elbow grease" is necessary in applying the soap and water. Vigorous scrubbing is useful. Warm water is preferable. It dissolves dirt and grease more readily than cold water.

Persons afflicted with acne or other skin disturbance are often misled in their choice of a suitable soap. Castile soap is excellent. It is made from pure olive oil, does not contain added fat and is non-irritating. Medicated soaps have a pleasant odor, but some of them may prove irritating in certain skin disorders.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of keeping the hands clean. It is a recognized fact that the hands are the most common agents for spreading the germs of disease. Children often contract childhood diseases because of soiled hands. Common eating and toilet utensils, door knobs, chairs, tables and other objects are laden with many varieties of dangerous germs. Since it is impossible to keep these objects constantly clean, it is necessary that the hands be frequently and thoroughly washed with a good, pure soap and warm water.

Some time ago I pointed out to you the danger that lurks in the family towel. Although most persons are careful about the towels they use, there are some who are amazingly careless. It is always a good plan to use the individual towel.

Wash the hands with soap and water before each meal. If you handle soiled objects be sure to wash your hands immediately. Children should be encouraged to wash their hands whenever they are soiled and always before eating.

A good way to encourage this health habit is to offer prizes for clean hands. Once a child acquires the habit of cleanliness, he will carry it with him throughout life.

In addition to the hygiene of the hands, daily bathing of the body is an aid to good health. The skin throws off many poisonous substances dissolved in the body sweat. In this way the skin aids the kidneys and intestines in ridding the body of undesirable waste products.

Dr. Einstein, Fannie Brice On Air

'The Robot Romeo' WCAE Feature

Events which transpire in a household 50 years from now when a mechanical servant suddenly develops human emotions are depicted in the American Weekly drama, "The Robot Romeo," offered on WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock.

The playlet is one of the series of presentations broadcast nationally over more than 100 stations each week and dramatizing articles published in the subsequent issue of the feature magazine, which is distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph. The programs are sponsored by 17 Hearst newspapers, including the Sun-Telegraph.

Turn on your radio—for a night of nights on the air!

Speaking at a dinner held in his honor in New York by the American Friends of the Hebrew University, Dr. Albert Einstein bids American dialers farewell, prior to his departure for Europe, over a coast-to-coast NBC network including KDKA at 10:15 p. m. Other speakers heard during the broadcast are Felix Warburg, financier and philanthropist, and Dr. Harlow Shapley, noted astronomer.

Replacing Ken Murray and Robert Russell Bennett's orchestra on the weekly Royal Vagabonds show, Fannie Brice, supported by George Olsen and his band, opens her first extended broadcast series over WCAE at 8 o'clock. Miss Brice, in addition to offering the sentimental songs for which she is famous, will appear in various historical and mythical guises, the first being "Cleopatra."

On WJAS at 10, George Givot, purveyor of Greek dialect, joins J. P. Medbury and "Magnolia," the Negro maid whose comedy dialogue with the humorist has earned for her a regular spot, in a group of rib-tickling episodes written by Medbury.

Josef Lhevinne's piano recitals, formerly heard at 11:30 p. m. on NBC-KDKA, move to NBC-WCAE on an earlier schedule—9:30—tonight. The change has been made in response to listeners throughout the country who wish to have children and young people hear the programs.

"The Country Doctor" (Phillips H. Lord) signs off on KDKA at 8:45 p. m., cancelling a three-a-week broadcasting contract, to take a much-needed vacation on the advice of his own physician. Lord, who has been on the air without a rest for the last four years, will continue to supervise the Sunday Seth Parker programs.

Seals to Present Pirate Gossip

Jess Carver's announcement of the district basketball team for the now-concluding season, sports chatter by Harry Keck, Sun-Telegraph sports editor, and Chilly Doyle's news flashes from the Pirates' training camp at Paso Robles, Cal., mark the Trained Seals program on WCAE at 7 p. m.

A special program for children is presented on WCAE today at 4:45 under the direction of Miss Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum.

Four times daily Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, relays the latest news to WCAE and WJAS dialers. He goes on the air at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Over the waves to Max Thompson's short wave receiving set on Darlington road floated the voice of an English announcer. This itself was a thrill; but can you imagine his sensation when he heard him give a description of the California earthquake in this manner:

"They are having an earthquake in California. It is centered around Los Angeles and Palm Beach, most of the damage occurring in Palm Beach."

* * *

Who are we that we should hold up for ridicule a radio slip of the tongue? Did we say Senator Davis was in the South Side High School?

What's the Globe-Trotter's battle cry? NOSTROVIA. What it means had been a mystery. The Sun-Telegraph boys use it as greetings. J. F. Seifert comes back by telling us that our playful word means something like "Happy Days" or "Have one on me." Other globe-trotters have called to tell us that it is a Polish word indicating good cheer and good luck. It sounds so friendly we thought we would make it a general word of good cheer and encouragement to all our carrier boys and, incidentally, to you.

* * *

Just got in touch with the Federal Reserve which, I understand, has been as busy as we are answering questions in regard to gold hoarding. Many of our citizens have in their possession old gold coins, heirlooms, keepsakes, mementoes, and the like which they have saved for years and years, not to hoard, but for sentimental reasons. Do these old pieces have to be turned in? All the Federal Reserve can do is to quote the Treasury ruling which says that the Secretary of the Treasury may require ALL coin, bullion, and gold certificates to be turned in to the bank or the Federal Reserve.

* * *

On yesterday's broadcast I wanted to wish three couples happiness on their golden wedding anniversaries and then mislaid the paper bearing their names and had to omit the greeting. I have it now and want to take this belated occasion to extend the good old felicitations to Mr. and Mrs. John Teets, of Zelienople; Mr. and Mrs. John Cummings, of Ingram, and Mr. and Mrs. William Haspel, of Titusville.

Nostrovia.

Radio Music Soothes U. S. In Crisis

By AIRCASTER

The gentlemen who devise the musical programs for broadcasting emerge today as prime patriots, having succeeded, as they claim, in contributing, in a shrewd manner, in keeping up the chins of Mr. and Mrs. Listener during the sombre days when the banks weren't banking.

Frank Black, who is in charge of musical endeavors for NBC, revealed today the subtle application of psychology by the music makers for keeping the public in a good humor. And going back over the programs of the past week one learns that all networks were parties to this pleasant plot. Black explains:

"At no time in the history of broadcasting was there less solemn or sad music on the air than during the past week and a half. Eighty-two per cent of the music—and that includes the classics—was buoyant and stirring. We are firmly convinced that inspiring music has a definite effect upon the humor of millions of listeners, and I hope we're not presumptive in believing that we contributed in some measure to the tolerant and courageous conduct of the public during the time of stress."

It is virtually certain that the cigaret sponsor employing Jane Froman, Ruth Etting, Lennie Hayton and Norman Brokenshire will not renew its contract with Columbia on April 15, but the program may switch to NBC.

Meantime, the magic carpet firm is looking for a new idea, and the suggestion that has appealed most to the sponsor calls for a series featuring Al Smith.

The ciggy folks employing J. P. Medbury are not dropping that comedian, as has been reported, but he will not take part in the broadcasts after tonight. Magnolia will do the comedy with a straight man, and Medbury will write the scripts. Medbury will go sustaining in two weeks on the Columbia review.

* * *

They're saying it along Radio Row (and I hear it from the funnyboners) that the West Coast earthquake occurred when one of Cantor's jokes fell flat.

But in all fairness to Mr. Cantor, it must be recorded that his recent broadcasts have shown a swell improvement. And, if I may voice an opinion, I believe Cantor is steadily climbing toward top place.

* * *

Guy Lombardo will leave his New York hotel spot and go touring before the end of this month, his itinerary to include Pittsburgh for the Nnatole Club Easter ball, as reported here.

Hospital Cleared In Patient's Death

An investigation into the death of Joseph Dohenic, 17, of 2977 Grover avenue, McKeesport, found dead on his cot in the County Hospital at Woodville Monday night, disclosed that the straitjacket he was wearing had been properly applied, according to Deputy Coroner H. M. Allen. He said the hospital authorities were not responsible for the fatality.

An autopsy at the morgue disclosed death was due to strangulation. A nurse found the boy dead, his head hanging over the side of the cot.

Advisory Board's Meetings Changed

Because of conditions caused by the banking holiday, a meeting of the Allegheny Regional Advisory Board, set for tomorrow, and of its committees scheduled today, have been postponed until April 12 and April 13, respectively, according to Ralph S. Harlan, secretary.

Move Up Forward Week Begins Monday

Next week will be M. U. F. (Move up forward) week in Pittsburgh—a movement sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. It will feature 200 business and professional men who will interview over 1,000 high school boys, learning of their problems and giving them advice.

Concern Reinstates Advertising Program

CINCINNATI, O., March 15.—(Universal.)—Officials of Procter and Gamble, one of the world's largest soap manufacturing concerns, announced today they have reinstated the company's entire newspaper and magazine advertising program.

This program, involving a huge expenditure, has been ordered suspended recently. The new order indicates the company's renewed confidence in the business situation.

FUNDS POURING BACK INTO BANKS HERE

banks are in difficulties. Many complications are being encountered which make it impractical to reopen banks to an unlimited extent. He said:

"It is for the purpose of insuring that the banks will be put in apple-pie order, pending reorganization or other necessary processes that conservators in many cases are named."

PROGRESSIVE OPENINGS

Announcement of the new list of banks permitted to open came today as the third and last step in reopening the country's sound banks.

Monday saw the licensing of banks in the 12 cities with Federal Reserve banks.

Tuesday came licenses for banks in cities with Clearing House associations, including Pittsburgh and other Western Pennsylvania cities.

Today the last—and largest—list of banks in towns without Clearing House associations was released.

With the opening of these last banks went the virtual guarantee of state and federal governments that they are liquid and sound.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon announced in Harrisburg that these state banks, not members of the Federal Reserve system, which failed to receive licenses, can request permission to reopen on a restricted basis under powers granted in the emergency state banking act two weeks ago.

OTHER LICENSES

Other licenses, not included in today's list, may yet come through from Cleveland for Federal Reserve members and Harrisburg for non-members, it was emphasized. No bank is to be considered insufficiently liquid until some final action has been taken, other than mere failure to include it in the list of licensed banks.

Dr. Gordon announced last night that the holiday has not resulted in the closing of a single bank under the jurisdiction of his department.

MILLIONS RELEASED

Thirty-three banks opened here yesterday, releasing hundreds of millions of dollars for use in business channels in this district.

Reports from all sides were of receiving tellers swamped with a rush of business, indicating a complete restoration of confidence in the financial soundness of the institutions here. Each had passed a close inspection for liquidity before reopening.

Gold in large and small amounts mingled with ordinary currency in deposits shoved across the counter to the tellers. One story related by the president of a small bank here was typical of many similar occurences during the day.

An elderly woman of foreign extraction brought a handful of gold coins tied in a handkerchief to the executive. Asked how much they were worth, she told him:

"I don't care. If the country needs it and President Roosevelt thinks it'll help bring back prosperity, it doesn't matter what I get for it."

GOOD-WILL PREVAILS

Similar spirit and good-will was reported on all sides yesterday as the public flocked to the banks.

The Clearing House Association was functioning in pre-holiday manner today and all regular methods of exchange of credits were back in force.

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange opened today after a lapse beginning with the reluctant closing of Pittsburgh banks, after most of the nation's institutions had been shut down.

Gold continued to flow into the Federal Reserve Bank here today, with lines of depositors at times appearing before the two windows which have been opened to receive it. Yesterday's receipts of gold both from banks and individuals totaled $350,000, officials stated.

Canada Hangs Two For Farm Murder

OTTAWA, March 15.—(INS.)—Emmanuel Lavictoire and William J. Larocque, farmers of Rockland, Ont., were hanged in the jail of the united counties of Prescott and Russell at L'Orignal today, for the murder with a pitchfork of Leo Bergerson, young farm hand.

Larocque was the beneficiary in a $5,000 double indemnity insurance policy on Bergeron's life.

DE CAMP QUITS BANK POST

George de Camp, a former resident of Pittsburgh, late yesterday announced his resignation as chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland. Ill health was assigned as the reason for the resignation.

In making public Mr. de Camp's resignation the governors of the bank said:

"Because of his extended knowledge of the affairs of the bank and the business interests of the Fourth District, however, Mr. de Camp will continue for the present his association with the Reserve Bank in a special capacity, following a brief period of rest."

Mr. de Camp has been chairman of the board of the Cleveland Reserve Bank since January 1, 1926. He left Pittsburgh to assume this position after serving eight years as manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland. Previous to his connection with the Reserve system he was a national bank examiner.

Gold Flow to Postal Bank Here Goes On

Gold coins and gold certificates continue to roll into the office of the Postal Savings Bank in the Federal Building. During the past 24 hours more than $2,400 in gold and $800 in gold certificates have been deposited. Among the gold were two $5 pieces, one dated 1834 and the other 1843. The depositors of the two old coins said they were keepsakes.

Money deposited also included much old paper currency.

Discount Extended On Water Rentals

Council yesterday voted to extend the discount period on water rents to March 20, after it was explained the bank holiday had prevented many consumers from paying in time for the discount. The regular period ended March 10.

U. S. ON NEAR NORMAL BASIS AGAIN

Associated Press.

The nation's banking system began functioning on an almost normal scale again today as the third day of President Roosevelt's progressive plan for the reopening of financial institutions found activities extended to virtually every section of the country.

Hundreds of smaller institutions joined the throng of larger banks reopened during the past two days in the twelve Federal Reserve district cities and in the 250 clearing house centers.

The New York Stock Exchange and other exchanges also reopened for the first time in 12 days.

Every state in the union had banking facilities. Michigan, the "veteran" bank holiday state, reopened no less than 149 commercial institutions.

Deposits continued to exceed withdrawals and in many instances some restrictions were lifted of withdrawals from savings banks.

Everywhere the people were saying:

"The crisis has passed."

WOODIN LAUDS CO-OPERATION

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—Secretary of the Treasury Woodin today issued the following statement:

"The country's response in over-subscribing the issue of United States certificates of indebtedness at the moment when we were just beginning to emerge from the banking difficulties is another fine example of the co-operation of the country in carrying out the governments financial plans.

"The leadership of President Roosevelt in insisting that the budget be balanced, and urging immediate enactment of a strong emergency measure to that end has been a powerful factor in widespread and vigorous popular support."

Auto Injury Victim Awarded $11,000

Bennie Simon, through his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Simon, of 1802 Center avenue, was awarded an $11,000 verdict today by a Common Pleas jury against Jennie Hershman, 1116 Anaheim street, for injuries received November 14, 1930, when he was struck by an automobile owned by the defendant.

Find School Leader With Throat Cut

CANONSBURG, Pa., March 15.—His throat slashed with a razor, the body of Joseph W. Wilson, 58, a Canonsburg school director, was found last night in a field off the Linden Thomas road by Frank Rittenhouse, a salesman. Wilson had been missing from his home since Monday.

Rittenhouse found the body when he investigated an automobile parked alongside the roadway.

F. R. and Woodin Seek to Punish 'Wreckers'

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Two grim and determined government officials—Franklin D. Roosevelt and William H. Woodin—are preparing to see that the nation's banks operate hereafter as they are supposed to.

Besides striving to put closed banks on a working basis, they are driving at those they believe responsible for the banking difficulties. As Secretary Woodin remarked, standing on the White House steps:

"We must bring them to justice. I could bite the head off a 10-penny nail, thinking of the persons who put their life savings, maybe $800 or $1,000, in institutions that were not properly run."

LEGISLATORS BACK PITTSBURGH'S JOB PLAN

Kaufmann plan this morning. The complete text was read into the records.

Stering said:

"A distinguished Pennsylvanian, E. J. Kaufmann, of Pittsburgh, has presented to the federal government a plan for work relief which can become a permanent method of dealing with the economic emergency.

"Pennsylvania has received more money from the federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation than any other state. Our state might well be the first in which this plan would be tried, if adopted."

The State Emergency Relief Board, headed by Gov. Pinchot, will hear the plan today. Board and Legislature are giving close attention to proposed relief measures, as only a small sum remains by which to continue relief work after April 1.

Roosevelt, Party Leaders Discuss Kaufmann Plan

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON, March 15.—President Roosevelt and leaders of his party in Congress today were giving consideration to an elaborate program for industrial rehabilitation and unemployment relief presented by a group of prominent civic leaders of Pittsburgh.

Acting as spokesman for the group, Edgar Kaufmann, well known Pittsburgh merchant, laid before administration officials a proposal that the federal government set up a giant $2,000,000,000 fund for financing self-liquidating projects and putting people back to work.

He discussed the plan in a series of conferences with Postmaster General James A. Farley, Senator Wagner, of New York; Senator Costigan, of Colorado, and Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin. Today he will go to Harrisburg for a further series of conferences with members of the Pennsylvania Legislature.

WORK NOT DOLE, AIM

In presenting the proposal to administration leaders in Washington, Mr. Kaufmann said the plan was designed to substitute labor relief for the dole as the most practical method for approaching the unemployment problem.

It is contemplated that the giant federal fund proposed would be used in making long-term loans to individuals and industries for rehabilitating factories, improving dwellings, installing machinery, equipment, building roads, farm houses and, in general, practically every project that lends itself to improvement.

Explaining the necessity for the fund, the Pittsburgh man said individuals and industries, through the stringency of credit, have been unable to finance needed improvements through the past years of the depression. As a result, he said, a vast amount of work, which normally would be carried on with consequent employment for thousands, has been delayed.

CITES STATE'S PROBLEM

Applying the plan to the individual states, Mr. Kaufmann showed how it would work out in Pennsylvania by citing the unemployment there. He estimated that 400,000 Pennsylvania families are on dole relief, with about $120,000,000 a year needed to supply these families with the necessities of life.

Rather than continue on a dole relief policy, he suggested that the government advance the state $200,000,000 for a rehabilitation program, secured by 10-year liens on the properties improved. Out of the fund thus advanced, he asserted, $120,000,000 would go for wages for frozen labor now on relief in the state. Of the $80,000,000 going into the cost of materials, $40,000,000 would be paid by manufacturers to labor not on relief and $20,000,000 would be paid by distributors of raw materials to labor similarly situated.

Mr. Kaufmann said:

"The alternative to this is the continuation of the dole relief with $120,000,000 paid to frozen labor in the state for the bare necessities of life. Moreover, the failure to provide a state-wide rehabilitation program means the gradual disintegration and decay of these private and corporate properties, brought about by frozen currency and credit."

Mr. Kaufmann said that in Allegheny County alone a list had been prepared of local industries which were ready to spend nearly $10,000,000 immediately in improvement projects if the money could be provided through some government agency under a national rehabilitation plan.

FINANCING TO SPEED WORK

As examples of the work contemplated in the Pittsburgh industrial area, he said the Cosgrove-Meehan Coal Company was ready to build a power plant and rolling mill at a cost of $500,000, while an expenditure of $100,000 was contemplated by the Allegheny Steel Company, on improvements if proper financing could be arranged.

The labor relief program outlined would utilize the resources of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation and such other governmental agencies as might be necessary for administration. Provision would be made for the individual states to stand back of loans within their borders as guarantors, thus giving double protection to the Federal Government. Complete machinery for setting up a contracting and employment office in each state is provided in the plan.

EMPLOYMENT ONLY CURE

In a brief submitted to Congressional leaders on the proposal Mr. Kaufmann said:

"Long-term obligations on property, actually improved, are vastly preferable to an ever-increasing burden of taxes for relief.

"The work dollar is a more potent and better dollar than the dole dollar. This plan, if adopted on a national scale, will stimulate construction, the heavy industries, equipment manufacturing, automotive, transportation, both consumer marketing and industrial marketing, and render frozen labor self-supporting.

"Both the unemployed and the taxpayer look to Washington for constructive measures that will render their lot tolerable. The only cure for unemployment is employment. Dole relief is at best an expensive bromide to relieve the hopeless suffering of that large group within its boundaries.

"The government through a construction program, financially sound, can set the unemployed to work, rehabilitate disintegrating property and protect its overburdened taxpayers.

"The need is great.

"That Washington will act, we attend with unwavering faith."

Attached to the brief were the names of the following Pittsburgh civic leaders who co-operated with Mr. Kaufmann in drafting the program: Frederick Bigger, city planner, member City Planning Commission; Harold F. Bucher, director, State Employment Office; C. A. Carpenter, machinery business, member National Committee on Trade Recovery; Henry Ellenbogen, Congressman; Clyde Fellows, advertising; John Hilder, executive director, Pittsburgh Housing Association; Nathan B. Jacobs, president, Morris Knowles Company; William A. Magee, ex-Mayor and Public Service Commissioner; Maj. Philip Matthews, director, Governmental Research Bureau; David Tynberg, statistician; Dr. Francis Tyson, professor of economics, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. R. J. Watkins, director, Bureau of Business Research, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. J. Paul Watson, associate director, Bureau of Business Research, and I. D. Wolf, secretary, Kaufmann Department Store.

J. W. HARRIMAN, BANKER, HELD

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Joseph W. Harriman, banker arrested late yesterday in a dramatic sickroom scene, faced the prospect today of quick grand jury investigation of the accusation that he misused funds totaling $1,393,000.

Harriman, chairman of the board and former president of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, was charged specifically with false entries. The government accused him of charging a total of $320,145 to the accounts of three depositors, ostensibly for the purchase of the bank's stock from him. The depositors, it was charged, were unaware of the transactions. Medalie said examiners had discovered misuse of a total of $1,393,000.

All West Virginia State Banks Reopen

TREAT COLDS IN THE FIRST STAGE!

—and You Nip Them in the Bud!

A cold ordinarily progresses through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, 1 to 3 days; the Mucous Secretion Stage. Relief in the first stage is far easier than in the later stages. In fact, it is taking chances to let a cold run beyond 24 hours.

For prompt relief of a cold take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This famous tablet stops a cold quickly because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels. It kills the cold germs and fever in the system. It relieves the headache and grippy feeling. It tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. That is the treatment a cold requires!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful. May be safely taken by young and old and whether you stay indoors or go out. There is absolutely no penalty attached to its use. For more than 40 years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. For safety's sake get yourself a package today. Beware of any dealer who offers a substitute.

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to keep your system immune.

SUNDAY SHOWS TO AID NEEDY

There are two or three Sunday movie benefit shows in sight for Father Cox, who says that his activities among the destitute during the last winter would have been fearfully curtailed were it not for the generosity of Harry Kalmine, regional director of the Warner Theaters, and some of the managers of the independent theaters who sponsored these drives for food.

With cash donations much smaller than usual on account of the general economic conditions, Father Cox would not have been able to spread his welfare work were it not for these food benefits. He will welcome the donation of theaters for this purpose and the Sun-Telegraph will gladly cooperate in the promotion of these affairs for the needy of Pittsburgh.

Father Cox has lost none of his usual energy, although still handicapped by illness, in his drive for Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery orders, every one of which coming in on the blank on this page or telephoned with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings a liberal cash commission to his unemployment relief fund.

Flattering for Matrons
Pattern 2396
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

As smartly dressed as she can be, is the matron with a "not-too-slim" figure, when she wears this flattering model. The seaming of the bodice and skirt follows scalloped lines and is accented by the smart note of top-stitching; the tie at neckline lends a soft touch, and flared sleeves are worn elbow length. Reflect the spring season with one of the new prints—cotton for mornings, silk for afternoons.

Pattern 2396 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

Send for our FASHION BOOK. It contains 32 colorful pages of lovely Paris-inspired models, for every sewing need, and shows how to be chic at every hour of the day. Every style is practical and easy to make. There are models for the larger figure and pages of delightful junior and kiddie styles. Lovely lingerie and accessory patterns, too. BUCS, OAKS CLOSE SERIES

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Buc Training Shift Seen. Other Clubs May Follow. Senate Disappoints Fans. Sisler Picks Corsairs. Floor Scoring Increased. New Dual Kayo Version.

SURMISED PIRATES MAY QUIT COAST

IT MAY BE for the last time that the Pittsburgh baseball club is now training on the Pacific Coast. That's the surmise to which an outsider might be led by recent diamond developments in California, while awaiting the reaction of President W. E. Benswanger to the surprising step taken by the Los Angeles club in calling off two practice games with the Pirates scheduled for March 28 and 29 in San Bernardino without notifying the Pittsburgh management, and forcing the Bucs to make new arrangements with the Seattle club for a pair of meetings in Santa Barbara on the vacated dates.

W. E. Benswanger

Coast reports have not revealed the attitude of President Benswanger and Manager George Gibson, and Vice President Sam Watters at headquarters here says there has been no discussion of a change. But in view of the fact that there has been dissatisfaction for some time with the way some of the Coast League men treated visiting major league clubs in the matter of exhibition games, this latest shabby treatment may bring things to the breaking point. A practice schedule is needed as well as climate to put a club in condition, and it may not be a bad guess that next year will find the Pirates quitting California, where they have trained since 1924.

POSSIBLY, TOO, IF the Bucs leave the West Coast, they may not be alone. Other clubs have had similar trouble with some of the Coast League men, particularly in Los Angeles, who appear to have little consideration for any outfit except the Cubs, owners of the Angels.

This year Detroit quit the Golden State, and it is said that the Giants next spring will move to Orlando, Fla. If the Pirates and Giants leave, the White Sox will hardly stick where there is no chance for practice against any major league opposition except the Cubs, of their own city.

THE DEFEAT OF the Schwartz bill to legalize Sunday baseball and other sports in Pennsylvania, with little hope for the Steedle bill and the prospect that the burden of the antiquated blue laws will have to be endured for at least two years more, was keenly disappointing to most residents of the state.

Evidently the will of the majority of the people does not count for much with some of the state Senators. Sentiment throughout the commonwealth is strongly in favor of Sunday sports, and the action of the Senate in defeating the measure was an impudent defiance of public opinion.

IN THE OPINION of George Sisler, the participants in the next world series will be the Pirates and the Yankees. "The Yankees will win the American League pennant right over again," Sisler predicts, "and the Pirates ought to finish first in the National. The Buccaneers are powerful in batting, have an excellent infield and outfield and good pitchers. They should have an edge if they get the breaks. The other clubs, excepting Cincinnati, appear to be evenly matched. After the Pirates, I'd rate the Cubs, Dodgers, Giants, Phillies, Cards, Braves and Reds in the order named."

Casey Stengel

IT MAY TURN out that Walter Beck, Memphis recruit, whom Max Carey already tabs as a fixture, won't be the only helpful addition to the Brooklyn pitching staff. Old Wilfred (Rosy) Ryan keeps up his early promise of making good in his comeback and fulfilling the predictions of Casey Stengel, who recommended that he be signed while a free agent during the winter.

Ryan got a flying start on the other Dodger slabmen by working out for a month in Miami before the practice camp opened. He has been showing up in impressive fashion ever since, and veteran members of the Brooklyn club are convinced that he is back to stay.

CAREY HAS NOT passed judgment on Ryan yet, and admits that you can't tell so early in the proceedings. But Max is strongly impressed by the work of the 34-year-old pitcher and says the fast ball Rosy is throwing in March would be a good one even in July.

Stengel is enthusiastic over Ryan's showing. He had Rosy for a couple of years at Toledo and insists that Ryan still is a good pitcher even though he checked out of the majors several seasons ago. "Don't forget that Ryan won 22 games in the American Association last year," Stengel remarks. "And the batters in that league are not exactly Chinamen."

LOUIE RIGGO VUKOVGAN writes from Ambridge: "Many people have the impression that the city basketball champions are given an advantage because they play only the winners of the W. P. I. A. L. tournament, with the victor entering the state tourney. Though the league champions participate in a much harder tournament than the city title winners, they win the same right as the city champions, that is to represent a certain district in the state competition. They represent the W. P. I. A. L. in the state race, and the city champions represent District VIII in the same tournament. So when the city champs play the W. P. I. A. L. champs, it's merely the winners of two different districts coming together in the state eliminations, the winner advancing farther in the race."

RECORDS OF THE basketball games played in the Big Ten Conference during the season show that the increase in scoring under the new 10-second rule was about 6 per cent.

The points scored in the 30 contests of 1933 total 1,780, whereas in 1932 the total was 1,678, a jump of 102, or a fraction above three to a game. One of the first all-Conference teams picked puts Froschauer, of Illinois, and Reiff, of Northwestern, at the forwards; Johnson, of Northwestern, at center, and Mattison, of Ohio State, and Selzer, of Iowa, at the guards.

AFTER ALL THESE years, Jimmy Johnston bobs up with a new angle on the famous double-knockout fight between Ad Wolgast and Joe Rivers for the lightweight championship back in 1912. He says the round ended before the count was completed and that both men were entitled to a minute's rest.

Ad Wolgast

There have been many versions of just what took place, but Johnston declares that he didn't miss a detail, as he was in a position to observe everything from a seat in the front row.

HENRY PASSERS ELIMINATE AMBRIDGE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Duquesne High School, champion of Section VII, and New Castle High School, champion of Section III, both former W. P. I. A. L. basketball titleholders, will meet Saturday night in the Pitt Stadium pavilion for the right to ascend the scholastic throne abdicated by Braddock High, winner in last year's tournament.

New Castle, coached by Phil Bridenbaugh, last won the W. P. I. A. L. championship in 1927, while Duquesne, coached by Ray Henry, was the league titleholder in 1928.

Duquesne High, the ranking pre-tournament favorite, qualified to enter the final round last night in the Pitt Stadium pavilion when it swept aside a fighting Ambridge quintet, champion of Section IV, in the second battle of the semi-finals, 30 to 21.

DUKES TOO STRONG

The Bridgers, playing a far better game than that which they showed in their victories over Mt. Lebanon and East Pittsburgh earlier in the tournament, were unable to check the powerful attack unleashed by the Scarlet Hurricane and trailed almost from the outset, not once holding the lead.

Duquesne was an inspired team against the Bridgers and there was no stopping the Henry machine once it started functioning on all cylinders. The Dukes, showing a vast superiority over the Bridgers in their floor game and holding a decided advantage in height, had no trouble working the ball under the basket for points, while Ambridge, checked at all times, was forced to resort to sharpshooting from mid-floor. The Dukes had all the better of the argument insofar as field goals were concerned, gathering in 13 while Ambridge was limited to eight.

RADVANSKY STARS

As has been the case in the earlier triumphs of the Dukes, Myles Zeleznik, a brilliant forward; Mike Radvansky, the outstanding center in the tournament, and Eddie Wisbar, a guard who compares with the best in the district, stood out prominently in the Duquesne victory. Radvansky, who almost collapsed in the dressing room from over-exertion, led the attack for the Dukes with a half dozen field goals. The remaining 18 points were divided equally among Zeleznik, Wisbar and Krenitsky.

Brilliant in defeat were Whitey Winne, whose work at guard all through the tournament stamps him as one of the best in the eliminations, and Johnny Michelosen, who led the Ambridge scorers.

Ambridge, its hopes for its second major W. P. I. A. L. championship in succession shattered, did not go down without battling. The Bridgers showed their fighting qualities by twice coming from behind to force the game into a deadlock.

DUQUESNE LEADS

The Dukes lost little time in piling up a lead, bagging six points before Ambridge could hit the hoop. Wisbar, Krenitsky and Radvansky each counted a field goal, giving the Dukes a six-point edge. Here Ambridge braced and Duncan, Michelosen and Winne scored from the floor to tie the count. Wisbar tallied a basket to enable the Dukes to hold an 8-6 edge at the end of the quarter.

The Dukes started the second period where they left off in the first, stretching their lead to 13-6 on field goals by Zeleznik and Radvansky and a foul by Wisbar. Once more Ambridge rallied to tie the score, two long ones in a row by Michelosen and another by Gutowski forcing the game into a deadlock at 13-all. That was the last time Ambridge was able to keep pace with the fast-stepping Henry team. Zeleznik and Krenitsky followed with baskets to give the Dukes a 17-13 edge at the halfway point.

DUKES PULL AWAY

Two fouls at the start of the third period gave Ambridge fans hopes as the Bridgers reduced the gap to two points, but Radvansky made two field goals in rapid order to give the Dukes a six-point edge. Vosnak reduced the lead by counting a field goal, but a bucket by Zeleznik and a foul by Wisbar gave the Dukes a 24-17 advantage as the teams entered the final stanza.

The Dukes lost little of their momentum in the final session and increased their edge to 10 points at 27-17 on Radvansky's fifth field goal and another foul by Wisbar. Radvansky's sixth field goal and a foul by Krenitsky accounted for the Dukes' remaining three points, while Gutowski got a foul and Michelson a field goal and a charity toss for Ambridge's last four markers. EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: AN ASTONISHING MATRIMONIAL RECORD — Riley Parker, a native of Hamilton, Ia., lived 59 years with his fourth wife. His fourth matrimonial venture was with Kate Parker, fondly known to the villagers as Aunt Kate Parker. There is a record of a European prince who celebrated two golden weddings with two successive wives. But two score and 19 years with a fourth wife, following three previous marital experiences, is one of the strangest human documents within the knowledge of Believe It or Not. The record is well authenticated by Parker's descendants and townsmen. AN OYSTER TREASURE TROVE —The oyster containing 106 pearls was one of two dozen bivalves which lucky Miss Farol purchased in New Orleans over the counter. The pearls range in size from a pinhead to that of a pea.

TOMORROW—THE ORIGIN OF OUR "SO LONG"

COAST LEAGUE NINE DEFEATS PIRATES, 5-4

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

OAKLAND, Cal., March 15.—Manager George Gibson of the Pirates this morning was still het up over the events of yesterday afternoon when his precious crew of Buccaneers sustained a cold drenching at the hands of Jupe Pluvius and a trimming administered by the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast League.

The defeat was not as hard to take as the soaking from the rain. The big leaguers were in a fair way to record another victory when the heavy drizzle began. The downpour had a chill to it and under the circumstances the contest might have been stopped permanently about the seventh inning, but the officials were obdurate and the fight was finished, the Oaks winning, 5 to 4, when Outfielder Pool doubled with two out in the ninth to score the winning run.

RAIN SPOILS GAME

Most of the Pittsburgh regulars escaped the severe drenching which was experienced by Pitcher Bill Swift and two other first string men. Swift was groomed to pitch a part of the contest. Bill relieved Steve Swetonic, who toiled four rounds without getting wet. Not long after Swift entered the contest the drizzle began and the rain was teeming when the winning blow was struck.

Meantime, Gibby had some heated things to tell Umpire Johnson, who was a target for abuse by the Pittsburgh pilot.

The Pirate regulars bombarded Pitcher Bill Ludolph for three tallies in the fourth round. Swetonic pitched three runless rounds before the home team broke through for a tally. The Oaks scored another in the seventh, but the Pirates got this back in the eighth.

Comorosky took a tumble in going after a fly in the wet eighth and the home team forced a deadlock. It followed through with the winning run in the ninth.

CONCLUDE SERIES TODAY

The series with the Oaks was to be concluded this afternoon. Pilot Gibson will throw Waite Hoyt and Heinie Meine at the opposition. As quickly as the game is over the Pirates will travel back across the bay to San Francisco, but tomorrow they will go by auto bus to San Jose, where the Portland Beavers are to be met in a single game.

Chillysauce

Three former Pirates—Pete Scott, Walter Reuther and George Kelly—are members of the Oakland club. Scott is one of the most feared hitters of the Coast League and bats in the cleanup position in the Oaks' lineup.

"High Pockets" Kelly was an Oakland managerial possibility when the Oaks changed hands. George remains one of the best of the fielding first basemen, but he is now in the Oakland outfield. George is happily situated in a suburb of San Francisco.

Bill Brenzel, young catcher for whom the Pirates paid a fancy price to the Missions a year ago, and who recently was ordered to Kansas City in the Hal Smith deal, has refused the terms offered him by the Blues.

Brenzel, a native son, sat in on the game yesterday. He said that Kansas City wants him to take a reduction of 60 per cent. Jimmy Caveney, manager of the Seals, is a strong booster for Brenzel. Jim said he tried to get Bill away from the Pirates, but apparently the Blues demanded him. Brenzel is only a boy and Coast Leaguers expect to see him become a star masksman.

Arky Vaughan started the Pirate-Oak battle with a dazzling one-hand scoop of a liner and then shot out his man. The thing was so thrilling that Honus Wagner bounced right off the Pirate bench. Yet Honus has been known to match the play once or twice.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

BILOXI, Miss., March 15.—My Gosh, but ain't big league baseball getting collegiate! I just read where the Giants were holding secret practice out in Los Angeles. If the boys wanted secrecy, why didn't they hire a boat, keep right on going west, and train on the Island of Yap?

Nick Altrock

The Giants may have a different club this season, but last year they didn't show any stuff that even a starving spy would steal. Of course, there are always poor days when attendance is so light it seems almost like secret practice. But I don't see any advantage in training for that in advance.

Personally, I can't understand any ball club locking the gates and going into a huddle these days unless someone's got real $5 gold piece to show or a racy story to tell.

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE SET

By TOM BIRKS

The Ottie Cochran Club, of Pleasant Valley, Whitaker, and the Gillespie Club, of Brentwood, were admitted to membership in the City Baseball League, making the circuit an eight-club affair, at the second meeting of the league held last night.

With Homewood all set to go, the five remaining clubs of last season's lineup, Dormont, Books, Ferris and J. L. Thomas voted the three outfits into the circuit and dropped the proposition made by Ralph Waner to put a club in at Etna.

Whitaker is a little far removed from the usual scene of City League operations, but evidently the other clubs felt that Dutch Ackerman could put a worthwhile club in the circuit. Whitaker won the Greater Pitsburgh elimination series last season.

A rules committee, composed of Ottie Cochran, Ed Buch, George Spiers, Billy Fuchs and Pip Contestible, was named. Everett Sweeney was re-elected president and secretary.

SPORT VIGNETTES

It makes no difference that you and I and virtually all of our friends and neighbors are in favor of a more liberal Sunday, especially one which would enable us to attend a baseball game or a football or a soccer game or play a round of golf or a few sets of tennis with the knowledge that we are not breaking any of the laws of the Commonwealth . . . It makes no difference with a handful of men in the State Senate who vote, 26 to 24, to defeat the Schwartz bill, which would have made all of this possible, under local option, and who now seemingly will act similarly on the Steedle bill, the last forlorn hope of killing the Sunday Blue Laws in this session of the Legislature.

Metropolitan centers want an open Sunday, as witness the 5-1 vote of Allegheny County and the 100 per cent vote of Philadelphia for the Schwartz bill. . . . Folks out in the more scattered communities are satisfied to let outmoded legislation remain on the books and thereby deprive the majority of what they want. . . . Thus, by the narrow margin of two votes, is the will of the minority once more invoked to stifle the hopes of the majority. . . . That belief was sanguine that an enlightened Legislature would pass the Schwartz bill was apparent in the withholding from publication of the major league baseball schedules pending such an eventuality. . . . The baseball season opens less than a month hence, yet the dates for the games have not been made public, awaiting approval of Sunday baseball in this state, the last in the major leagues to officially frown upon the pastime on the Sabbath.

Consider the case of Carl Montebano, the gangling youngster, of Braddock, managed by Frank Klaus, the former middleweight champion of the world. . . . All along, Klaus has been saying Carl had the makings of a good fighter, and the fans and promoters have said him nay. . . . Carl always appeared to be too awkward, too long in the arms and legs, and too much of a wrestler, and he had a way of

TITLE BATTLES GET SANCTION

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—The New York Athletic Commission has reversed itself and given sancttion to a 15-round heavyweight championship match between Jack Sharkey, the titleholder, and Primo Carnera, to be fought about mid-May.

Early in its session yesterday the commission okayed a match between Max Schmeling, former champion, and Max Baer, under the promotion of Jack Dempsey and Tim Mara, to be fought at either the Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds on the night of June 1.

Following the death of Ernie Schaaf after his recent bout with Carnera here, the commission went on record as opposing any matches for Carnera except against men apprixmating his own huge bulk. Because Sharkey already has beaten him, and the championship is involved, this ruling has been waived. The Madison Square Garden Corporation will stage the Sharkey-Carnera bout.

PRIMO IN ACCIDENT

UDINE, Italy, March 15.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, Italy's "Man Mountain" of boxing fame, was recovering today from head wounds received when a racing automobile in which he was a passenger overturned on the road from Bologna. Two tire blowouts caused the accident.

Fight Results

At Philadelphia—Lew Massey won by a technical knockout over Phil Zwick, 3 rounds; Paulie Walker defeated Johnny Hayes, 8 rounds; Eddie Law defeated Bobby Abel, 6 rounds; Lew Milano won by a technical knockout over Baby Face Palmer, 3 rounds; Stan Warneke knocked out Milt Jacobs, 2 rounds.

PITT OPENS SPRING GRID DRILLS; TECH PASSERS WIN

Bobby Jones' GOLF By Robt. T. Jones, Jr.

Bobby Jones

One of the reasons that golf is a difficult game to teach or to learn is because both teachers and pupils are likely to lose sight of the fact that the swing is a whole thing, rather than a a number of parts. For the sake of convenience, it is helpful in discussing the swing to break it down into segments of its arc or into functions of the various parts of the body. But behind everything there must always be the knowledge that no segment or function can be altered in any degree without making a corresponding change in that which precedes or follows.

Certain fundamentals there are, which have been observed in the swings of a sufficient number of experts, to cause them to be accepted as correct. These are important and necessary. But it would not do for Jim Jones to attempt to teach Sam Brown to perform every single movement just as Jim Jones does. Regarding the fundamentals as of as much importance as they unquestionably are, there is still lattitude for individual expression or interpretation.

LEARN PROPER SEQUENCE

In teaching or learning the game, both instructor and pupil should first gain a complete agreement that their common goal is a thorough understanding of the sequence of movements which will bring about the proper set of conditions at impact. This, after all, is all that matters. Fundamentals should be amply stressed, and definitely understood and applied, but things that are not fundamental but merely mannerisms should be recognized as such. It is in these that the pupil may be allowed to indulge his own preferences, or, if you like, express his individuality. The teacher who attempts to prescribe a complete swing, mannerisms and nonessentials included, does more harm than good, and the mass of information he tries to impart only confuses. The pupil should not be asked to discriminate, to avoid fixing upon some detail as important which in reality amounts to little.

LATITUDE FOR PLAYER

As an illustration, take the case of a rank beginner who does not even know how to grip the club. How should he be taught to hold it properly? Should his hands be merely placed for him in certain exact positions which his instructor regards as correct? Or should he be told and made to understand that there are real reasons why his hands should be placed in certain approximate positions, and given a degree of latitude to adjust himself comfortably, so long as his positions continue to meet all essential requirements? Certainly, to me, the latter is distinctly to be preferred. Instruction in everything from the grip straight through should avoid the form of bare prescription and include more reason.

LOCAL RACQUET DATES SET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dates for the 1933 district junior and boys' net competition officially have been decided upon, according to announcement from Pittsburgh Tennis Association headquarters today. The annual Pittsburgh Center youths' event, premier affair of its class hereabouts, will be reeled off from Wednesday, July 26, to include Friday, July 28, while the Western Pennsylvania trophy event, which this year may offer doubles as well as singles action, will run from Monday, July 17, to include Thursday, July 20.

It is probable that the Center tournament will again be staged on the courts of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, with the West Penn classic, boasting much larger field, returning to the more commodious racquet layout of Carnegie Tech.

Meanwhile comes more news of badminton, that fast-growing sport importation from the British Isles and Canada. 'Tis possible that the first local inter-team competition at the pastime will be staged at Shady Side Academy next Sunday afternoon with specially selected group of P. A. A. performers invading the Fox Chapel area for contest with an outfit composed of faculty members and students of the home institution.

In the course of conversation after the Interscholastic Tennis Conference conclave Monday evening, Athletic Director Cap Palmer, of Shady Side, waxed lyric over the racquet innovation. He said:

"Several weeks ago I read in the Sun-Telegraph that badminton is catching on at the P. A. A. and the Allegheny Country Club. We have been playing it at Shady Side for the past three years and it has become tremendously popular there. We have two courts laid out in our gymnasium and they're about the busiest spots in the school during recreation periods."

TARTANS BEAT WEST VIRGINIA BY 34-25

By JESS CARVER

College Memos:

From Pitt—Jock Sutherland puts his footballers through their initial spring drill today. Reporters due for wet footsies. Dr. Carlson gives basketballers final strenuous workout of season.

From Tech—Buddy Overend denies Chick Davies to replace Maxie Hannum as basketball coach and joins with Harry Adam Stansbury, of West Virginia, in announcing list of boxers to compete in second annual Conference tournament Friday and Saturday in Morgantown.

From Geneva—Jakie Bohren added to list of those who would coach Covenanter footballers next fall. List now totals well up in the double figures.

Unless the rain continues to fall and the rivers to rise to the extent that the boys find a flock of barges and tug boats and river steamers deposited on their practice field, the varsity footballers of Pitt will be put through their initial spring drill this afternoon. Dr. John Bain Sutherland will serve in the capacity of master of ceremonies.

It was a wet and soggy day about a year ago when Jock called his Panther hopefuls out for their first March session. Maybe its a good sign, or if the 1933 team goes as far as did the '32 eleven, then the Pitt coaches will pray for a steady diet of rainy spring inaugurals in the future.

TARTANS ROUT W. VA.

Carnegie Tech's home basketball campaign belongs to the past. Last night, the Tartans completed their campaigning on their own court by whipping West Virginia, 34 to 25. It also maked the last home appearance of a quartet of Skibo players, including Bobby Smith, Red Fergus, Eddie Stentz and Jerry Seigal.

For the first 15 minutes of the action (?) it looked like the boys had declared a holiday on field goals. With the first half three-quarters over, the score stood 5 to 1 in favor of Carnegie. It wound up 13 to 7, with Tech still ahead.

In fact, the Skibos were out in front all the way. West Virginia did manage to pull up to within a point of the Plaid at 16-15 in the second period, but the wearers of the Plaid pushed on the old throttle and sped away to a commanding advantage.

SORTET TOPS SCORERS

Held scoreless for the entire first half, Bobby Smith wound up his play before a home audience by sinking five field goals in the second half, but scoring honors for the night went to Capt. Sortet, of West Virginia, who, by the way, made his final varsity appearance in the city in last night's game. Sortet dropped five field goals and two fouls for a dozen points.

The victory was Tech's eighth out of 18 starts and its fourth out of seven in the Intercollegiate Conference. It marked the seventh setback suffered by the Mountaineers in conference play. The lineup:

Tech.	G.	F.	Pt.	W. Va.	G.	F.	Pt.
Jagnow, f	0	0	8	Slate, f	3	2	8
Smith, f	5	0	10	Wilson, f	1	0	2
Stentz, c	0	2	2	Stydahar, c	0	1	1
Fergus, g	1	1	3	Porter, g	12	8	32
Silverman, g	1	0	2	Fidler, g	0	1	1
Ewart, c-f	1	0	2	Stewart, g	0	0	0
Edelblut, c	1	0	2	Klug, g	0	0	0
Rigg, g	2	1	5	Baker, g	0	0	0
Totals	15	4	34	Totals	9	7	25

Score at half time—Tech 13, West Virginia 7.

Missed fouls—Tech 2 (Smith, Rigg); West Virginia 9 (Slate 3, Stydahar 4, Sortet, Fidler).

Referee—Al Bolster.

Umpire—Dan Daugherty.

Time of period—20 minutes.

In a preliminary that went into a three-minute overtime session, a team of former Catholic High School stars from Johnstown defeated the Carnegie Tech Plebes, 23 to 21.

BOXERS SELECTED

Five boxers from Duquesne, four from Pitt and two from Carnegie Tech, will compete in the second annual individual championship tournament of the Intercollegiate Boxing Conference, scheduled for West Virginia's swell field house Friday and Saturday of this week.

The list of eligibles for the tournament was announced last night by Graduate Manager Overend, of Tech, and Athletic Director Stansbury, of West Virginia, after a confab here. Previously, these worthies had secured the preferred list of Earl Yoemans, of Temple, third member of the committee on selections.

The complete list follows:

125-pound class—Puglia, West Virginia; Kleb, Bucknell; Gibbs, Duquesne, and Atlas, Carnegie Tech.

DAVIS RUMOR SPIKED

Overend took occasion last night to deny that Chick Davies, of the Dukes, was to succeed Max Hannum as basketball coach at Carnegie. Buddy said that Tech was not interested in securing Davies, had not approached him nor had Chick made application to Tech for the job.

Davies, along with other members of the Duquesne sports staff, recently was slipped a 25 per cent cut in salary. Chick's two-year contract has a year to go. Whether the cut will automatically cancel the contract comes under the head of future business, although with the ball team he'll have on hand again next season Chick would be a sucker to quit on the Bluff.

All-Star College Team on Air

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's all-star college basketball team for the Pittsburgh district will be announced tonight during the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department over WCAE. Jess Carver, writer on college sports, who will make the selections, will give them over the air, along with his reasons for selecting the players, and his story will appear in tomorrow's issue.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will read special news flashes from Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, staff correspondent with the Pirates in California, and will contribute other sports chatter to round out the program, which is scheduled for 7 o'clock, to continue for a run of 15 minutes.

—And We Almost Had It, Too!

SAM WATTERS, PIRATES' SECRETARY AND VICE PRESIDENT, READS NEWS OF DEFEAT OF SUNDAY SPORTS BILL BY TWO VOTES IN THE SENATE

Unless the Steedle bill makes the grade, there'll be no legalized Sunday baseball in Pennsylvania for at least two more years, as a result of the defeat by a vote of 26 to 24 in the Senate yesterday of the Schwartz bill, which would have permitted Sunday sports under local option. The major league baseball clubs were ready with schedules, including Sunday games in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, but now are going ahead with plans to release their original drafts, showing open dates on the Sabbath in this commonwealth. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture taken at Pirate headquarters.

MARTIN TRIED AT SHORTSTOP

BRADENTON, Fla., March 15.—(AP.)—Pepper Martin at shortstop and Joe Medwick at third base, was the surprise combination tried by Manager Gabby Street at the St. Louis Cardinals' practice session yesterday.

Street wants many strings to his bow and figures Medwick may be developed into a big leaguer at the hot corner. He said:

"With Frisch absent and Hornsby and Adams likely to remain in the if class for a time, I'd lige to know right now if Medwick and Martin can play the infield."

Baseball Briefs

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP.)—The Cincinnati Reds have tipped the rest of the National League that it's going to be tough rounding the bases against them this coming season. In a decided innovation in the club's practice session, Manager Donie Bush sent the squad through a double-play practice, with Bottomley on first, Grantham on second and young Otto Bluege on third, drilling on snap plays Bush hopes will trap many a runner in the coming months.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP.)—Encouraged by the signing of Hack Wilson, pudgy slugger, the Brooklyn Dodgers stepped through a brisk training period in their quarters here yesterday. Wilson, who previously balked at the salary offered him, placed his name to a contract yesterday and was quite secretive about the number if dollars he would receive for the year's labors.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—The Browns yesterday had one more ball player in camp, for before he left for St. Louis, Vice President J. C. McEvoy signed up Russell White, a big lefthanler, who had been working out with the team.

SARASOTA, Fla.—(AP.)—A triple by Manager Marty McManus with two on and a homer by Stan Bergeron, rookie first baseman, with one base occupied yesterday enabled the Boston Red Sox Yannigans to register their first victory over the regulars by a 5-3 margin in a full nine-inning practice game.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP.)—At the request of the University of Texas officials, the Detroit Tigers' first exhibition game, acded for today, has been postponed until Friday. After the university game at Austin, the Tigers will go to Beaumont Saturday and Sunday, then return here for the final week of practice.

BILOXI, Miss.—(AP.)—Manager Joe Cronin, of the Washington Senators, hopes to take advantage of today's game with the Atlanta club to bolster his team's batting average, which has been woefully weak. Consequently, all the regulars except those in the battery department will be sent up against the Southern Association Crackers.

LOS ANGELES.—(INS.)—The Chicago Cubs today released Outfielder Mike Kreevich and Infielder Del Young to the Albany club of the International League on option.

Central Loop Plans Six-Team Roster

LIMA, O., March 15.—(AP.)—Officials of the Central Baseball League have decided to try to operate as a six-team circuit this year. Previously it had been planed to have eight cities in the league.

Three cities already have signified their intention of holding franchises. They are Dayton, Fort Wayne and Terre Haute. Two others, Springfield and Lima, are probable members.

The sixth membership would go to one of three cities, Canton, South Bend or Erie, it was decided.

SCHOOL CARD SET

YOUNGWOOD, Pa., March 15.—Nine games have been arranged for the 1933 Youngwood High School eleven. The card follows:

September 23, Greensburg, away; October 7, open (pending); October 14, East Huntingdon Township, home; October 21, Mt. Pleasant, home; October 27, Sewickley Township, away; November 4, Derry Township, away; November 14, Jeannette, away; November 18, West Newton, home; November 25, open (permanently).

Sunday Baseball Defeat Blow To Connie

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 15.—(AP.)—His battle for Sunday baseball defeated, Connie Mack, Philadelphia Athletics manager, said continuance of the Sunday blue laws means a terrible battle for the A's to exist.

The A's veteran pilot, who appeared at the Pennsylvania state capitol recently and argued for the Sunday game, was "greatly disappointed" at the State Senate's defeat yesterday of the proposed blue law modifier.

LOTT, SHIELDS SCORE WINS

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Frank X. Shields, lanky young Davis Cup player, and George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, who returns to international competition this year, stole a march on the national indoor singles tennis championship field yesterday, ploughing through to the quarter-final round as the rest of the seeded singles players took time off to start play in the doubles championships on the board floor of the Seventh Regiment Armory.

Shields, his service working with devastating power, swept John H. Pitman, of Yale, aside, 8-6, 6-1.

getting the fans on him by resorting to rough tactics. . . . But Klaus persevered, got him a fight here and there, and finally muscled him into a spot where he could make or break him. . . . It came last Monday night, against the veteran Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, who used to knock 'em dead in a punch. . . . They were in the first of three 10-round bouts at Motor Square Garden.

Pirrone came out of his corner looking as tough as ever and throwing those vicious punches that had earned for him the title of Belting Paul. . . . Montebano stepped around and warded him off the best way he could, taking a bad body pounding for a few rounds. . . . Then, when Pirrone found out he didn't have a pushover, he began to lose heart and finally folded up under Montebano's punching and wanted to quit in his corner after the fifth round, but was pushed out to continue and was saved by the referee after he had been floored twice. . . . The fans who had come to jeer Montebano, the erstwhile ugly duckling of the local rings, remained to cheer, and so today Manager Klaus is walking around with a big, broad smile, and he may be pardoned if he says, "I told you so."

N. L. SCHEDULE HELD UP

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—The 1933 National League baseball schedule will not be released before the end of this month, it was said today at the office of President John Heydler.

The schedule has been further delayed in the hope that other bills may be proposed and acted upon by the Pennsylvania Legislature before the season opens.

Two schedules already have been completed, one carding Sunday games for Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and the other eliminating Sabbath contests in those cities. The opening date has been tentatively set for April 12.

Star Women Golfers Win at Agusta

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 15.—(AP.)—Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., the medalist, and Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, Mo., the defending champion, won easy first round match play victories yesterday in the Augusta invitation women's golf tournament.

The tall New Jersey girl, runner-up in this event a year ago, scored the most impressive triumph of the day, smothering Miss Phyllis Shaw, of Duluth, Minn., 8 and 7.

Mrs. Hill defeated Mrs. C. R. Harbaugh, of Cleveland, 5 and 4.

Local Boy Named La Salle Grid Leader

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—(AP.)—Ray Bahr, of Pittsburgh, has been elected captain of the 1933 La Salle College football team.

Bahr, a halfback and the flashiest ball carrier on the La Salle squads of the past two years, succeeds Wink Gallagher.

Babe Ruth Pay Cut Favored by Jobless

NEW YORK, March 15.—(Universal.)—Babe Ruth's salary should be cut to $48,999, according to a poll of 2,000 jobless men who are depending on the Salvation Army.

The poll, made public today, reveals that the destitute men, most of whom said they are baseball fans, believe the home-run slugger's demand for $60,000 is too high.

The boxing fans still are buzzing over the fine fighting exhibition given by Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, in beating Jimmy Thomas, at Motor Square Garden, Monday night, and the Garden is taking steps to bring him back soon.

Matchmaker Jules Beck yesterday offered Mose Butch a meeting with Paul, which has been taken under advisement by Jack London, Butch's manager. Mose was getting packed to leave on his long-delayed trip to California when the earthquake caused a hitch in his plans last week, and he was making renewed arrangements when the prospect of a Paul match loomed up. It all depends now on whether the club can make the offer sufficiently attractive for him to cause him to put off the coast trip once more.

Between Rounds

Gus Wilson, veteran trainer and manager, who slopped off to see the Motor Square show, may return here shortly with some of his boxers. He is handling Eugene Huat, Billy Hogan and Joe Ghnouley.

Art Rooney is reported dickering for the Meyers Bowl.

Buddy McArthur boxes Frankie Ryan at Fairmont, W. Va., Thursday night of next week. Jimmy Reilly and Jackie Fuller will meet in the six-round semi-final.

Tracey Cox, the Irish welterweight, of Indianapolis, who boxes Billy Holt in the windup of the Arena show on the North Side Friday night, is one of the toughest hitters in the game for his weight and boasts many knockout victories. He is a counter-puncher. Holt is of the same order and probably will have to make the fight in view of the fact that Cox hardly will do the leading to him.

Motor Square Garden is off the all-star card standard after Monday night's experiment with three 10-round bouts. Manager Joe Mazer announced today that next week's bill will consist of the 10-round windup between Tony Herrera and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, an eight-round semi-final and two six-round preliminaries and a four-rounder. Such a program, he believes, is fairer in its treatment of the local talent. Nat Litfin, of the Hill, and Charley Burns, of Johnstown, will box one of the six-round engagements, and Mike Barto, of New Kensington, is in the opener with Charley Blozevich, of Johnstown.

Johnny Mitchell, of Detroit, has been substituted for Archie Bell, of New York, as the opponent of Jackie Wilson, local bantamweight, in the 10-round semi-final at the Arena, Friday night. Bell reported sick and Matchmaker Lew Raymond had to hustle to make a satisfactory substitution. Mitchell has boxed Tommy Paul, Johnny Pena, Paul Dazzo and other stars and comes highly recommended.

Ray Foutts, manager of Ted Yarosz, has engaged an attorney to contest the withholding of $210 from Yarosz' purse for his fight with Eddie Ran in Detroit last Friday night. The deduction was made on the claim of Scotty Monteith, Detroit promoter, who asserted he had lost this sum when Yarosz canceled a match with Paulie Walker a few months ago on the ground that he was ill.

Davisson Takes Lead In Cue Tournament

R. C. Davisson holds the top position in the annual city three-cushion billiard championship tournament today.

Davisson last night won his second match of the tourney, defeating Dale Campbell, defending champion, 50 to 47. It was Campbell's second defeat.

In tonight's match, Kilmeyer meets Smith.

The Don Cossack Russian Singers gave the last recital in May Beegle's series last night in Syria Mosque. This was a farewell recital and it is to be regretted that we shall not hear this marvelous choir and its wiry conductor, Serge Jaroff, again.

Mr. Lissfelt

The leader reminds us of Toscanini in that he obtains results with human voices as the grand Italian does with orchestra. These results come from most painstaking precision in the ensemble, from utmost obedience to dynamic values, and to a devotion to native music which sings from their inmost beings. In the years during which we have heard these singers there has been little change in the quality of their performance; now we begin to sense the wearing down of solo voices, but certainly in unison they are still able to obtain stirring music.

Their program was again chosen from representative composers of old and new Russia, many arrangements of folk and soldier songs, and as encore the ever popular Volga Boatsong and a Cossack dance song in which two spry fellows did one of those irresistible Russian dances.

Opera Program
Tuesday Musical Club

The Tuesday Musical Club offered its Opera Program in the auditorium of the Twentieth Century Club yesterday afternoon before a record audience.

Mrs. James Stephen Martin and Mrs. Gertrude Rohrer, two excellent managers of such good shows, were in charge of the program. They gathered from the works of eminent American composers—Cadman, Herbert, DeLeoni—music which idealized the Indian's tribal music and presented it dramatically as "The Passing of the Red Man." Jack Wooley looked after the stage management and to him comes credit for excellent stage effects, and ensemble dances. Lester Myers was stage director.

Martha Myers Murdoch and Homer Wickline play piano accompaniments for the songs, Lena Hayward played flute and Carolyn St. John the tom-tom. The Tuesday Musical Club String Ensemble under the direction of Ruth Thoburn Knox played most attractive entreacte music.

The singers contributing were Justus Duve, Sara Quisenberry, Elizabeth Young, Mary Dickinson, Carolyn St. John, Esther Edmundson, Dick Fulton, Percy Dorrington, Ralph Maser, Samuel Murphy, Jack Wooley, Joseph Seyler, Dick Darrah, Otto Ramik, Ernest Rose and Herbert Ransford.

Sun-Telegraph-Warner Junior Komic Club

Ann Helfgott, "official reporter" of the Enright Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club sends in the following interesting news items about the members of her chapter.

Margaret Pattinson has returned to the regular meetings after being absent for a long time, due to illness. Margaret was at the theater bright and early last Saturday greeting old friends and meeting many of the new members. Margaret did not forget her duty, she brought along one new member who enjoyed the meeting very much.

Minnie Pattinson, sister of Margaret, is ill in a hospital. Minnie hasn't been at a club meeting since last summer. If every member who knows Minnie would write her a letter it would do her more good than all the "nasty"-tasting medicine she has to take every day. So, come on boys and girls, write Minnie a letter. Send them to me care The Enright Theater, East Liberty Postoffice, Pittsburgh, Pa.

About a year ago I asked Kenneth Pitney what he would like to be when he grew up. At that time he said that he hadn't made up his mind. A short time afterwards he had the misfortune to break his arm. At the meeting last week he came to me and told me that he had decided to be a doctor when he grows up, and fix other youngsters' arms when they break them.

LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE

By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Carnegie Company Sold For an Enormous Sum

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE BY BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

A short time previously, Mr. J. Edward Simmons, Mr. Charles Stewart Smith and a group of New York bankers had visited Pittsburgh, inspecting what was to them an unknown world—a huge steel works in operation—and received royal entertainment from Schwab. In return for this courtesy Mr. Simmons and Mr. Smith had arranged a dinner for Schwab at the University Club, on December 12. About 80 guests were present, including, as Carnegie proudly notes, practically all the leaders of industry and finance in New York.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, the most distinguished of this impressive company, was appropriately placed at the right of the guest of honor—a collocation not lacking in a certain piquancy. Here was the leader of American money, then in his prime and at the crest of his power—a power most recently signalized by his invasion of steel—in amiable conversation with the young man—Schwab was then 38—who was generally supposed at that moment to be planning enterprises that might have an unsettling effect upon the Morgan regime.

Schwab Summoned

This note was further accentuated when Schwab rose to speak. The after dinner qualities that have since become widely known never appeared to better advantage. Schwab's topic was the one that had formed his daily occupation since the era of Capt. Bill Jones. "He started out by saying," remarked Judge J. H. Reed years afterward, "that he could not talk about anything but steel. I remember that because he always starts every speech that way."

Some days later Morgan sent for John W. Gates.

"Do you think the Carnegie property can be acquired?" he asked. Gates regarded this as quite possible.

"I think I shall take it up with Frick," Morgan replied. Gates' hand was raised in deprecation. The great man's ignorance of certain matters appalled his visitor.

Then he added: "There is only one man who has any influence with him and that is Charlie Schwab."

Morgan asked Gates to arrange a meeting. When Gates telephoned Pittsburgh and asked Schwab to come to New York—"Mr. Morgan wants to see you and the matter is important"—there was some hesitation. Carnegie and Morgan were not on cordial terms, the steel man's denunciation of Wall street, his refusal for years to be swept within its orbit, and his recent railroad and tube plans, not being regarded as manifestations of a friendly spirit. Would a confidential meeting with Morgan not involve disloyalty to Carnegie?

Gates resolved the matter by proposing an "accidental" confrontation. Could Schwab not drop in casually at the Bellevue Hotel in Philadelphia on a particular day? Possibly Mr. Morgan might be there and the two men could have an informal chat.

Schwab accepted the suggestion, but when he arrived for his unpremeditated rendezvous no Mr. Morgan was to be found. Instead there came a telephone call from New York. A snowstorm was raging, Mr. Morgan was laid up with a cold and, under his doctor's orders, could not leave the house; he hoped that Schwab would come to New York and meet him at his home—a plea of invalidism in which the younger man acquiesced.

"I have asked you to come here," Morgan began, "to tell me again the things you spoke about the other night, only in greater detail." Schwab complied. He had brought statistics on the companies which were essential to the new amalgamation, and for several hours he set forth, in encyclopedic exhaustiveness, all the information he had gathered about steel in the preceding 20 years. His conversation was a particularized look into the past and into the future. Long before he finished, Morgan had become convinced. The time was evidently ripe for a company like the one forecast a few evenings before.

All Night Session

A single question remained: Would Carnegie sell out? Morgan's query at first might seem absurd. Carnegie's determination to retire had several times been forced on the banker's attention. Frick had tried to transfer the company to the Federal Steel and had sought afterward to enlist Morgan's interest in the Moore option. Schwab had more than once suggested to Elbert H. Gary that the company be acquired.

Despite all this Schwab was in doubt. No one knew better than he how changeable "the old man" was. The mere fact that Carnegie had planned retirement did not necessarily mean that, a definite opportunity having arrived, he would do so, and the actual separation, Schwab well understood, would be a mighty pang. Carnegie's nature could incline to many conflicting influences and it was a question which would prevail. In answer to Morgan's question he replied that Carnegie's behavior for the preceding 10 years had indicated a desire to withdraw and that acceptable terms would undoubtedly be entertained.

The sun was now streaming into the library windows, the deliberation having lasted from 9 o'clock in the evening until dawn. Morgan brought matters to a close by rising.

"Well," he said to Schwab, "if Andy wants to sell, I'll buy. Go and find his price."

Carnegie needed little persuading. He well knew that the time for parting had come. No opportunity so favorable was likely to recur. Only one banker could handle a transaction of such proportions, and that was the firm that had now come forward.

Under these conditions it is not surprising that the transaction was speedily and amicably arranged. This time there was no talk of "options" and two million dollar forfeits. The blunders committed in the Moore negotiations were not repeated. No longer was Carnegie dealing with ghosts in the background. Yet the value placed on the property in 1901 was essentially the same as that stipulated in 1899. The sum then asked, $320,000,000, became the basis for the total now proposed to Morgan.

The Selling Price

Two years had passed; in that period the Carnegie Company had enormously increased in assets and earning power, and this progress was entitled to recognition in the new selling price. In 1900 the company had made $40,000,000; the estimated figure for 1901 was $50,000,000; and all this prosperity had been attained since the Moore option.

Carnegie and Schwab now agreed that these profits of $90,000,000 should be used as a kind of yard stick for measuring the growth of capital value since 1899. The $320,000,000 was therefore increased $80,000,000, making a total of $400,000,00. There were outstanding $160,000,000 in Carnegie bonds and $160,000,000 in shares.

The new Morgan corporation yet unnamed—was asked to exchange its bonds for Carnegie bonds on an equal basis. For each share of Carnegie stock, $1,000 par, it was to issue $1,500. Thus no premium on Carnegie bonds was exacted, but a 50 per cent increment was demanded for Carnegie stock. After a few minutes' discussion, Carnegie took a sheet of paper and, with a lead pencil, jotted down these terms. Schwab was directed to take that informal document to Mr. Morgan. The greatest commercial transaction in the history of the world was agreed upon in this simple, direct, and uncontentious fashion.

No Meeting Needed

Carnegie said, "That's what I'll sell for," and Morgan, glancing at the paper, replied, "I accept." There was no diplomacy, no haggling, no bidding up and no beating down. Like a modern retail merchant Carnegie marked his goods with a definite price, and that price was unhesitatingly paid.

No meeting between the two men most intimately affected was at that time necessary. The negotiations, from first to last, were in the hands of Schwab. For Morgan, indeed, there still remained plenty of work; there were 11 other companies to be brought within the fold, and the labor involved in these transactions and the details of launching the enterprise extended over two months. But that story does not involve Carnegie, whose part in the affair was completed in early January, 1901.

Though Carnegie and Morgan never met to discuss the terms of sale, Morgan not unnaturally desired to have a few words with the man who had proved so formidable a foe and with whom he had now reached so friendly an agreement. One day, several weeks after the negotiations were ended, Carnegie's telephone rang. Would he not come down to Wall and Broad streets for a little talk?

As Carnegie was older than Morgan this invitation seemed unbecoming. "Mr. Morgan," he replied, "it is just about as far from Wall street to Fifty-first as it is from Fifty-first to Wall. I shall be delighted to see you here any time."

In a brief period Morgan appeared at Carnegie's home. The ensuing conversation was pleasant and satisfactory. Mr. James Bertram, Carnegie's secretary, timed the interview, taking out his watch. Morgan emerged after precisely 15 minutes had elapsed. So little time did the two great men require to discuss a matter involving $400,000,000!

"Mr. Carnegie," he said, "I want to congratulate you on being the richest man in the world!"

Agreement Signed

A few days afterward Morgan awoke to a startling discovery. This understanding had been reached in so casual a fashion that no legal papers had been signed. He summoned his own counsel, Mr. Francs Lynde Stetson, and Carnegie's lawyer, Judge J. H. Reed.

"Do you realize what I have done?" he said. "I have sold the Carnegie Company short." He had organized the United States Steel Corporation, brought together all the other subsidiaries, and had made no contract with Andrew Carnegie. Judge Reed described the incident in his informal way:

"He (Morgan) told us in substance that he had just awakened to the fact that he was making contracts here with stockholders of the Federal, the National, National Tube, and so on, and he had not a scratch of the pen from Mr. Carnegie under which he could hold him or his estate if he died. He said, 'You men go up the street as fast as you can and get me something.' We took the Elevated and went up to Mr. Carnegie's house and explained what we were there for. He had a little room next to his library, and he was getting begging letters by the bushel; that is literally true. They were carrying them in in bushel baskets, from people wanting wooden legs and everything imaginable . . . Mr. Stetson and I then, with occasional interruptions from Mr. Carnegie, dictated a letter to Mr. Morgan, or to J. P. Morgan & Co., which Mr. Carnegie signed, and we took the original down with us to Mr. Morgan and he seemed quite relieved."

Bundle Day Plans Being Completed

At the monthly meeting of the Goodwill Board of Managers tomorrow, final plans for the Bundle Day Campaign will be made. Two hundred scoutmasters will meet March 22 and make arrangements for scouts participation in the campaign.

Members of the advisory board of the Women's Auxiliary will attend the Lenten service in the chapel of the Goodwill Industries this afternoon and hear Dr. Sanford W. Corcoran speak. Later they will hold a luncheon.

Sleuths Seize Rum After Finding Secret Panel

Leroy Case, 24, arrested by county detectives in a raid yesterday on the Travelers' Restaurant, 417 Water street, was at liberty on $2,500 bond today awaiting action of the grand jury on a charge of violating the Snyder act.

Discovery of a secret panel led to the reported seizure of five gallons of bulk whisky and 32 pints of bonded whisky. Detectives Frank Ritz and Thomas Calig tapped the walls an hour and a half in search of the panel to the secret room where the whisky was hidden, they said.

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

The downpour last night didn't keep the town's music lovers away from Syria Mosque, where the Don Cossack Singers appeared in concert. And incidentally, the taxi company did a rushing business.

And in spite of the rain, which we hope will bring us April flowers instead of showers, the smart women in the audience had chosen colorful gowns. Black, which has predominated in theater costumes of late, was worn, of course, since the well-dressed woman always has favored this shade.

Ever so many of the younger set were at the concert last night. Sub-deb Margaretta Oliver was there, Alice Rust in green chiffon and Mary Lee Rust in Kelly green taffeta. And debutante Dorothy Blaxter in white satin with a smart brief jacket of red velvet. With her was her mother, Mrs. H. Vaughan Blaxter, in flax blue satin.

Debutante Attends

Unusual Dress

Her gown was of white corded velvet—woven like corduroy, and having a narrow red belt and the smartest back decolletage. A generous V was cut out of the back of the high-necked frock.

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby's gown was striking, too, and in her favorite color scheme—black and white. It was of black and white flowered crepe with a brief cape made of rows and rows of narrow pleated black tulle ruffles.

Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., was in pale green crepe. With her was Mrs. T. Howe Nimick. Others there were Mrs. David Meade Gilmore in a dinner dress of rose crepe with ecru lace bodice and short sleeves; Mrs. J. Porter Gillespie in lame with an autumn leaf design, and Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger in black velvet.

In Pale Green

Mrs. Jacob S. Payton was in black chiffon. Mrs. B. F. Jones III, Mrs. J. Farley Walton, were there, and so were Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly in red velvet girdled black chiffon, Mrs. Roy A. Hunt in black lace, Helen MacCloskey in beige chiffon, and Katherine MacCloskey in purple crepe.

Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., was in black crepe, Florence Carroll in black lace, and Mrs. Frederic Ickes Merrick in black lace.

Florida is still beckoning to some of the smart set even though spring at home isn't very far off, such days as yesterday lead us to believe.

Florida Beckons

Mrs. J. Frank Drake is on her way back to Florida after a brief trip north. Her daughter, Virginia, who is in Palm Beach, did not accompany her mother north. Constance Drake, the youngest daughter of the Drake family, who is studying and traveling abroad this year, is expected home the latter part of May.

City Manager Plan Meeting Tomorrow On North Side

Mrs. John O. Miller, chairman of the county government committee of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, will address an open forum to be held tomorrow evening in Christ Episcopal Church, North Side, the first in a series of similar meetings planned to enlist voters of Pittsburgh in the fight for city manager plan legislation.

Attorney E. O. Tabor is scheduled to speak at a general assembly meeting in the downtown Y. M. C. A. on Friday morning. Meetings also are being held Monday at the home of Mrs. H. C. Reller, Riverview avenue, with Mrs. F. C. Sinn as speaker and on Tuesday at the Manchester Education center, Chateau street.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

There's no possibility whatsoever that Patsy Mellon will be presented at the Court of St. James this spring, as rumored elsewhere.

Mrs. T. A. Mellon, Patsy's mother, who with her debutante daughter, has just arrived home from a West Indies cruise, tells me she had never even thought of presenting her daughter in England, and moreover isn't even going to Europe this spring.

Mrs. Mellon and Patsy were among the Pittsburghers on the Frontier Nursing Service benefit cruise on the Belgenland. She told me it was a marvelous trip, with fine weather all the time.

BLACK INTEREST NOW COMES FIRST IN SMART, NEW EVENING GOWNS FOR SPRING

THE RUSH of fullness to the back of evening gowns gives any woman a good excuse to turn her back without fear of being called rude, and gives her, as well, a new charm on the dance floor. Usually contrasted with extreme simplicity in the front of the dress, this fullness is achieved by shirring or draping by large bows or bustles, or by long sashes cascading down the back, or by long sashes starting at the shoulders or the waist. In many of its versions this new fashion is kind to those who suffered from sleek, moulded lines, and still gives no cause for complaint to those blessed with sylph-like figures.

* * *

THE DRESS in the center, worn on the stage by Ina Claire, is of fog grey chiffon with a satin hip yoke in the same tone. The insert, which is shirred in a triangle at the back of the yoke, falls in a soft fullness to the floor. The jacket crosses in front and has full sleeves that areb rought tightly to the wrist and edged with brown fur.

* * *

THE THIRD dress is of orangey red crepe almost smooth in texture. Starting in a wide drape at the shoulders a sash of powder blue crepe gathers under a wide rhinestone buckle at the back and falls in folds to the bottom of the skirt. The blue is repeated in inserts at the side of the waist. In front the bodice is simple and forms a high, round neck.

Why not legislation to stop those "exempt from tax" government bonds, or any tax exempt gag? And thus make it possible to lower the Man In the Street's income tax burdens?

An orchid to the best newsmag for printing that Chattanooga newspaperman's letter . . . An orchid to the song, "Little Brown Shoes," even if you haven't any children . . . An orchid to Duke Ellington and his Cotton Club Crew . . . An orchid to the editorial page on columnists in the April "Plain Talks" . . . It's about time!

Roger Wolfe Kahn's favorite brunette now is Doris Groadby—but he'll tell you she won't be his next bride . . . Columbus Day is celebrated all over, but no one paid any attention to the birthday last week of the man for whom America was christened—Amerigo Vespucci . . . A newspaper publisher's name was added to the local Nazis' Blacklist. A columnist's name heads it . . . After witnessing Bruce Cabot in "King Kong," it's no wonder nobody'll speak to the Cabots.

There's no truth to the report that Kate Smith will star in a movie called "Queen Kong" . . . It was announced via the radio, during the inaugural, that one statesman's wife wore artificial flowers on her gown. Did she represent the depresh? . . . "Mendel, Inc.," by David Freedman (Eddie Cantor's joke-author), has sold over a million copies in Russia, but David hasn't rec'd a penny for it . . . No copyright laws there . . . Alice Brady In Quake, Pay-Cut

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—Some visitors may find Hollywood a quiet place, but to Alice Brady it's breath-taking.

She got in Monday night. Wednesday, the players voted to take a 50 per cent cut. On Friday came the earthquake.

The stage star was in midst of signing the salary slash agreement when the MGM studio began to rock. She went into a mild case of hysterics and rushed to the street.

"I've been a big fool all my life," she said in an interview. "I've always thought I liked new experiences. But don't give me any more like that one."

The star, surrounded by a swirl of terriers and scotties, is rushing from one end of the studio to the other preparing for her first talkie, "When Ladies Meet."

Miss Brady

"I've seen my test," she said, "and I feel like a disembodied face. They assure me I was hired as an actress and not as a beauty, but I am bewildered.

A pronounced brunette and full of nervous energy, Miss Brady looks very much the same as she did when she, Robert Warwick, Holbrook Blinn and Clara Kimball Young were doing silent pictures for the old World Company and for Paramount.

She came to Hollywood because the time fitted in with her plans, because everyone told her it was the thing to do and because she had seen "The Guardsman" and "Cavalcade."

* * *

* * *

Checking over the reactions of people on the set, someone asked him what Director Sidney Franklin did.

Mr. Barrymore

"He saved himself," replied Barrymore, with a sardonic grin. "But you should have caught me going down three flights of stairs."

* * *

Impervious to human fear, a motor-driven camera caught a remarkable picture of the Los Angeles earthquake. Later, they showed it in the projection room. You see a scene in progress. Suddenly the dialogue stops. The lights go dim, the figures, in silhouette, rush around shouting, the sides of the set begin to weave and shake. As a cool-headed sound man continued to record, you even get the roar and rattle of the shock. An amazing bit of film. Doubtless, you'll see it in the news reels.

* * *

Miss Dietrich

Paderewski Coming

Ignace Paderewski, celebrated Polish pianist, will give an all-Chopin program in Syria Mosque next Monday evening, March 20. It has been 42 years since the great pianist made his American debut. His actual debut occurred in 1887 in Vienna, and in 1890 London heard him. In the following year he made his first visit to the United States. He has returned frequently as an artist and he also served his native country, Poland, as its ambassador to the United States. Later he was premier of Poland.

Mary Carr Becomes Comedienne

One of filmdom's immortal dramatic actresses has kicked over the traces and gone in for comedy! Mary Carr, celebrated "screen mother," whose "Over the Hill" is still being discussed in dramatic circles, and whose art has been preserved for coming generations at the Smithsonian Institute, appears in "The Moonshiner's Daughter or Abroad in Old Kentucky," a Masquer's Club burlesque melodrama being produced by RKO Radio Pictures.

Claire Windsor Prizes Interesting Gift

Claire Windsor, who is to be seen in World Wide's "The Constant Woman," says that the most interesting fan letter she ever received was one from a physician, who believed she should do Therese, heroine of Anatole France's famous novel, "The Red Lily." Enclosed in the letter was a red lily pin in dull gold and rubies which Miss Windsor treasures as a genuine prize.

Janet Gaynor Again Sings in Film

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

When "The Green Pastures" is presented in the Nixon Monday evening, March 27, it is expected the audience will include a home town boy who made good in the big city. That is, Marc Connelly, the author, who has made arrangements to come for the opening of his celebrated play. Other plays by Mr. Connelly have visited Pittsburgh, and all that have reached here have been locally successfully, but Mr. Connelly, if he noted it at all, did so from afar. However, since "The Green Pastures" has been given the embrace of dramatic knighthood through the award of the Pulitzer prize, and is considered to be a masterpiece, perhaps Mr. Connelly feels that he has achieved something worth while, and that he can come home now, with his head erect, or at least not bowed in failure. He will come back to the town where he began his writing career as a reporter on The Pittsburgh Sun, now The Sun-Telegraph, on which are still employed some boys who can say "I knew him when—" The play will be presented with a company headed by Richard B. Harrison in the part of "The Lawd," which he created and has played steadily for three years.

Tenth Year For Arlen

The first picture in which he received screen credit was "In the Name of Love" with Greta Nissen, Ricardo Cortez, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

At present he is playing in "The Beer Baron," where he has the romantic lead with Mary Brian. It was with Miss Brian in "Behind the Front" that Arlen had his first leading role.

Forbes

Challenge Is Thrown Down To Business

By B. C. FORBES

AN OPEN LETTER to American business men:

GENTLEMEN:

You now have golden opportunity to demonstrate your faith in the future of this country.

It is infinitely important that you rise to the occasion forthwith.

Mr. Forbes

The financial soundness of the United States has been proved to the whole world: The American dollar stands higher internationally today than it did before our banks were closed.

Our national finances now give every promise of being set in business like order; drastic economies are to be effected promptly, definite plans have been formulated to increase revenue very substantially.

THE BACKBONE of the nation, the working classes, have given a most convincing, most gratifying exhibition of patience, fortitude, forbearance. They have proved how deep-rooted is their law-abiding instinct. In short, they have proved they are made of the finest of mettle.

This should not be interpreted as meaning that they can be lightly subjected to further stress and distress. It should not be interpreted as meaning that the need for exerting every ounce of your ability, vitality, initiative, courage is not urgent.

IT IS inconceivable that you will not find banks and bankers ready to rally to your co-operation in setting the wheels of industry and business in quickened motion.

The whole people have given impressive evidence that they are eager to follow vigorous leadership.

You have witnessed the response to President Roosevelt's clear-cut, decisive, aggressive, affirmative action. Give them similar leadership and you unquestionably will find them equally responsive.

Heretofore—perhaps naturally—you have concentrated largely on economy, economy, economy, on cutting, cutting, cutting, on retrenching, retrenching, retrenching, all of which meant dismissals, dismissals, dismissals.

THE HOUR has come for instituting a different course.

The hour has come to act constructively, to fall into line with the new faith which has been born.

The hour has come to begin building up instead of continuing to tear down.

GIGANTIC PENT-UP demand has accumulated during the last three years of retrenchment, apprehension, hoarding.

The total amount of savings, the total amount of spendable money today is enormous almost beyond imagining.

What is required is a spark of confidence to set the whole machinery of business, the whole machinery of normal living, into action.

UPON YOU rests an immeasurable responsibility: the weal or woe of this whole land.

Or only cowardice?

WE AWAIT your answer, not in words, but in your deeds.

IMPROVED TAX PLAN AIM OF F. R.

By MERRLYE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, March 15.—As a companion to his economy plan, President Roosevelt of course recognizes the necessity of an improved scheme for raising public revenues under existing abnormal conditions.

The chief executive's laconic message to Congress, urging immediate legalization of beer, linked the subject with the revenue problem. He indicated that "substantial" taxes should be levied against the manufacture and sale of beer. Great Britain has demonstrated the possibilities of large revenues from the beer trade.

Mr. Rukeyser

The excise tax on the beer is essentially a sales tax. In spite of purely political opposition to the idea of a general manufacturers' sales tax, it seems inevitable that the logic of events will force the issue. Possibly for face saving purposes an effort will be made to have it appear that the government is doing no more than extend the existing list of sales or excise taxes. Those who have studied the subject closely have estimated that to be genuinely effective, it will be necessary thus to tax at least half the articles common to ordinary trade and industry.

CONGRESS DELAY

The regretable tax revolt in the last Congress unfortunately delayed the federal government and enabled a number of states to get into the sales tax field first. Most tax students, who favor the sales tax, believe the federal tax should be a manufacturers' tax, whereas a number of states have looked into the field of taxing retail sales.

Before his nomination, Mr. Roosevelt pointed to the need of co-ordination of tax raising between the various states and the federal government. Some tax authorities think that the sales tax field should be reserved for the federal government, which might allocate part of the proceeds to the states.

A workable plan for holding down federal operating expenses and tapping new reservoirs of revenue will enormously heighten government credit and facilitate near-term funding of the unwieldy floating debt. When this debt funding has been accomplished, it will mark a significant milestone toward recovery.

After these preliminaries have been accomplished, President Roosevelt's prestige would help in the floating of new government bonds not only for refunding but also for paying for capital improvements. There is increasing talk in financial circles of the possibilities of augmenting the availability of capital to the government through using wartime liberty loan methods for the sale of prosperity bonds.

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, charges today that the treasurers of large national corporations added to the banking confusion before the holiday by irresponsibly shifting deposits back and forth between the interior and New York. This recalls the part that non-banking corporations also played before the panic in intensifying the speculation by making outlaw loans to brokers after the Federal Reserve had urged member banks to clamp down. Then when the panic occurred, these non-banking lenders' irresponsibly called loans, adding to the chaos and forcing the banks to step in and take them over.

Fortunately these episodes are now only past history.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Bond market celebrated the ending of its most extended vacation since the World War by marking up prices substantially in all categories of listed loans.

Japanese government loans led the foreign group with advances of more than 4 points in the 5½s and 6½s. Several of the Germans gained 2 or more points, while French 7s, 7½s and Italian 7s moved forward a point each. The Australians were slightly easier while British 5½s were unchanged.

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

STEEL UPTURN HELD LIKELY

NEW YORK, March 15.—Iron Age says:

The aftermath of the banking holiday and reorganization of the banking system as affecting the iron and steel and allied industries is a widespread expectation of a rising volume of business and a higher price level, which has already been reflected in an advance of 25 cents a ton in heavy steel scrap at Pittsburgh, sharp price increases on non-ferrous metals, and a general decision among producers of pig iron and finished steel not to sell for delivery beyond the second quarter, notwithstanding the desire of some consumers to cover for longer periods, particularly for pig iron.

Although steel ingot production for the country at large has slid off to a shade under 15 per cent, with the possibility of a further decline before the turn arrives, the steel industry is confident that the resumption of banking activity throughout the country this week will bring a measurable improvement before the end of the month. Much of the further falling off in steel business is directly traceable to the shutting down of several automobile plants.

Current ingot output is possibly a little more than is required by this week's finishing mill schedules, but some steel companies are not averse to putting raw steel in stock to prepare for a possible quick resumption of steel buying.

RUSH OF BUYING JUMPS STOCKS 1 TO 8

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Securities markets surged upward enthusiastically as trading was resumed today.

The quick resumption of free and normal trading, with rising prices, was a bright contrast to the months of highly restricted dealings by which trading was started again after the last important closing, coincident to the outbreak of the World War. Many stocks gained 1 to 8 points, virtually cancelling the losses of the last half of February. While the market hesitated for a time after the first upsurge, it moved up again in the early afternoon to new high for the current recovery.

Case and Owens Illinois Glass registered exceptional gains of 8 points, while advances of 5 or more appeared in such issues as American Telephone, Allied Chemical, United States Steel preferred, International Harvester, American Sugar, Union Pacific, Corn Products, Norfolk and Western Macy. Gains of 3 to 4 were numerous, embracing such issues as United States Steel common, American Can, Santa Fe, South Porto Rico Sugar, National Distillers, National Dairy, American Tobacco B, Johns Manville, Sears, Roebuck, Montgomery Ward. Anaconda and Kennecott were among issues up 2 or more.

The market appeared to gain much of its initial impetus from buying by shorts who had been locked in over the 12-day suspension, but commission houses reported that the outburst of covering was followed by a stream of buying orders by telephone, telegram and private wire, with the odd lot business large. Brokerage opinion was somewhat mixed over the general market outlook, some quarters pointing out that such a vigorous rise would need to be backed up by general business improvement, to improve corporate earnings.

But with restored confidence in banks, the government economy program rapidly developing, as well as legalization of beer, many quarters in Wall street, however, were inclined to the view that a belated spring recovery in business was in the making, despite the setback shown in such lines as steel production and electric power consumption in the past fortnight, as result of business handicaps through temporarily restricted banking facilities.

Speculative activity in shares indicated that the idea of better commodity prices, either through inflation or renewed buying as result of restored banking confidence, had taken a firm grip in many quarters. While some of the most sweeping gains were in issues calculated to benefit from legalization of beer, others which might particularly benefit from better raw staple prices, such as sugars, coppers, farm implements, and mail order company issues, swept up briskly. Trading was resued in raw sugar futures at somewhat better prices, and domestic copper had advanced somewhat during the market holiday. Spot cotton has been firm, as well as Winnipeg wheat, but the big domestic futures markets for cotton and wheat will not resume until tomorrow.

The action of United States Government bonds had a good effect on stocks. Those issues pushed up briskly, in response to the success of the March 15 Treasury financing, and the progress of the Government economy bill in Congress.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, March 15.—At the resumption of sugar futures trading on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange today prices were unchanged to 5 points higher, with near positions relatively firm on active covering and increased outside buying. In the spot market a sale was confirmed of 18,000 bags of Philippines late yesterday to a local refiner for March-April shipment at 2.81c, a decline of 4 points from the previous sale. Nearby sugars were held at 2.95c, with no interest shown above 2.90c.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.10c for fine granulated with moderate withdrawals against old contracts, but no new business reported.

MONEY SYSTEM EXPLAINED BY ECONOMIST

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, March 15.—In addition to having value in itself, and being as stable as possible, it is important that the commodity to be used as money should be convenient as a medium of exchange. To this end, it should be readily made into coins which are equal in all respects. And it should have so much value per ounce that considerable sums can be easily carried.

Then, too, the monetary substance should be durable, and should be easily recognized and distinguished from other substances.

SUBSTITUTES NEEDED

Even gold, however, is inconveniently heavy for exchanging large values; while for small values gold coins would be too tiny to be practicable. Furthermore, gold is soft and loses by abrasion when used as coin.

Accordingly, we now use paper substitutes and minor coins of baser metals. This gives rise to numerous species of money. The money system of the United States may be briefly described as follows:

It is based upon a "standard metal," gold. Gold bullion is freely coined at the mint, and full weight coins can be melted down into bullion without loss of value. Provision is made to make other kinds of money convertible into gold except in a great emergency. In these ways, gold coins are kept equal to the market value of gold bullion and the value of all our money rests upon gold.

The "standard unit" of our gold money is 23.22 grains of pure gold, which is the quantity in each gold dollar. This fixed weight makes the standard definite.

BASE FOR PAPER

On this base we erect various forms of paper "currency" and subsidiary coins.

Our representative currency consists of "certificates." "Gold certificates" are warehouse receipts, against which the specified amount of gold is held. (We also have issued some "silver certificates," which are backed, dollar for dollar, by silver.)

Then we have several kinds of "notes," which are not representative of gold, but are credit, or fiduciary, issues. These are all promises to pay, made by bankers or the government, and may be secured largely by collateral other than gold. They include Federal Reserve notes, Federal Reserve Bank notes, national bank notes and United States notes ("greenbacks").

RECENT ISSUE BACKED

The Federal Reserve bank notes, which have recently (1933) been used as an emergency currency, are ordinarily backed by government bonds and a 5 per cent redemption fund in gold. The same is true of national bank notes.

The "greenbacks" are a hangover from Civil War inflation, but are now backed 45 per cent by gold.

Our "token" coins of silver, nickel and bronze all have a face value which is greater than that of the metal they contain, so they are not melted down, and as their value is small there is little temptation to counterfeit them.

CHECKS CURRENCY

In addition to all this currency and coin, we use bank checks as a medium of exchange. Indeed, we ordinarily do about 90 per cent of our business by this means. This kind of "money" is called "deposit currency," since checks are drawn against bank deposits. Their value depends upon the credit of the individuals who draw them and the condition of his bank.

In times of numerous bank suspensions, when checks cannot be used, we naturally find a great demand for other currency such as certificates and notes, and a "currency shortage" is said to exist. In reality, this is chiefly a tieing up or loss of bank deposits.

It remains to note that some money is "legal tender," and some not. (Money is legal tender when, by law, a debtor can tender it in payment of his debt; and even if the creditor objects, the interest ceases to run). Our gold certificates, United States notes, and silver dollars are legal tender. Federal Reserve notes, bank notes and United States certificates are not.

DECREASED GAS BILLS SENT

The Peoples Natural Gas Company yesterday sent out bills with a 25 per cent reduction for gas used in excess of 15,000 cubic feet a month. In so doing the company put into effect the cut announced Monday, officials said.

The Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and the Equitable Gas Company made no announcement as to a change in their rates.

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

It was arranged Barry was to motor back to town early on Monday morning with Mr. Graves, his chief.

They would discuss many things during that tete-a-tete run to town. Barry had hatched out more ideas concerning the new department he was reorganizing.

There was a new moon after dinner, Sunday night. It hung like a frail sickle in the sky, over the dark blue water.

After his glass of excellent port with Mr. Graves, Barry was in a beatific mood. He felt like getting off the earth and out on that magic strip of water.

Barry dreamed dreams. He was at peace with all the world. The mad whirl of business competition, New York City, were far away. He was at one with Nature.

Presently he was aroused by a grating sound on the bottom of the boat . . . a kind of a thud . . . They came to a standstill.

MOTOR STALLED

The motor sizzled . . . gurgled . . . stopped again.

Barry tried, too. Apparently he made bad worse. The engine gurgled . . . sighed . . . then was silent.

"We may as well get out. It looks as though we'd have to stay on this beastly mud-bank till someone comes and takes us off!" declared Loranda.

* * *

Monday was a public holiday, and Zella and Judith—having taken a long walk in Central Park for the good of their health and figures—returned to their little apartment late in the afternoon.

Zella bought a paper from a news vendor on the corner of Broadway and Fifty-sixth street and, while Judith made a cup of tea, she stretched herself on the couch and started to read it.

"Put that thing down! Hark at this!" cried Zella.

"'A romantic adventure, rivaling anything recently appearing in the movies, last night befell none other than the beautiful Miss Loranda Tewson, well-known Park avenue debutante and leader of the younger set in this city and on Long Island. As the guest of her bosom friend, Betty Graves, only child of John B. Graves, president of the Knickerbocker Bank and other large concerns in the city, Miss Tewson was week-ending with a gay party at 'Runnymede,' the Graves' estate on the Sound. This dashing young lady took one of the young men of the party, a Mr. Barry Deane, prominent officeholder of the Knickerbocker Bank, for a spin on the water. Several miles from home, they were stranded on a mud-bank, the engine having given out. They were forced to spend the night there. It was not until daylight that the young pair were found by a search party headed by the local Coast Guard.

"'An odd feature in this romantic happening is that the young couple were already half a mile on their way homeward in the dawn, their engine apparently acting perfectly, when they were 'found' and 'rescued.' May we say that the spring is accountable for many things, and that we may anticipate a further romantic announcement following this event?'"

JUDITH SHOCKED

She read those burning lines again . . . Loranda . . . Barry Deane . . . all night together on a mud-bank . . .

"That girl's got persistence, I'll say! I'll bet she did something to the magneto of the boat—gave it a little twist or something—I'll bet she staged the whole show for her own ends," said Zella slowly.

Judith was dumb. What further news would the papers bring forth in the morning?

She bought the Times and the Herald-Tribune on her way to the bank next day . . . went into a drug store and ordered a coffee, so that she could look at them privately.

There was nothing in the news . . . she breathed more freely.

The month of May came in with a wild sweet riot of lacey green on all the trees . . . magnolias and cherry blossom blooming in the parks . . . lilacs with their enchanting perfume peeking from bushes in prim squares, and the flower shops gone mad with color.

But Judith's heart was lead, these golden days of spring, ever since that ghastly morning when Loranda's engagement to Barry had been announced in all the newspapers.

Something young and vital, something brimming with a zest for joy, had died in Judith's very soul that day, so that now she went about the business of life like an automaton.

"I'm growing up, old thing. Life's a bit of a scramble at the best. I've got my mind on the job. Competition's keen in this town."

Zella said to herself: "The poor kid's ditched in the game of love, and suffering the tortures of the damned! I know!" She wanted to tell poor Judith that time was the only healer—a wonderful comforter—because in time one did forget, or very nearly so. . . .

But there was a look on Judith's face—a still, proud look that wrung Zella's very heart, yet it forbade trespassing in the inner sanctum where Judith's sorrow was locked away. "Oh, men are beasts—selfish beasts, all of them!" Zella told herself furiously.

This Barry Deane, after weeks of making love to Judith, but cautious enough never to say a word of marriage, had now linked up where his own best interest lay—precisely as Zella had thought he would!

"That trusting child! He ought to be horsewhipped!"

With her native honesty, however, Zella admitted that Loranda had been no modest violet waiting to be plucked—that Loranda had woven a clever web, and got him entangled.

"But he could have wiggled out of it if he'd wanted to. I'll bet he's been in tighter corners before. He didn't have to be kidnaped."

She couldn't bear to have Loranda look at her with triumph and perhaps a kind of scornful pity in her eyes . . . hear intimate things of Barry Deane . . . perhaps (most terrible of all) be forced to listen to their love talk.

WEARS BARRY'S RING

"Loranda's crazy about him! There's no doubt of it. She's got him on the brain. If only she can get her way, she'll have a marriage early in June, and live in a back street with him, if necessary! I never saw a girl so changed," Zella declared one day, having made up her mind that Judith might as well know the whole truth—better a final stab that might serve to cauterize the wound, than "hope deferred," which was nothing but long-drawn agony.

"Does she wear an engagement ring?" Judith forced herself to ask, through frozen lips that smiled wanly.

"How do you mean, Zella?"

"Well, she says he offered to give her one, but she thought—without setting up house and all—that she shouldn't permit such an expense. 'We must study economy!' she keeps saying"—Zella imitated Loranda's drawl. She added: "She wears his signet."

Judith had been outwardly gay that evening. Zella and she had girl friends to dinner in their little apartment. But along around dawn, Zella had wakened . . . Zella heard queer little sounds as though Judith were crying.

CIVIL WAR IN PARIS (1830)

This second revolution since 1789 in France was the result of the unwise reign of Charles X who disregarded the French constitution. Charles fled to England; Louis Philip was put on the throne..."the citizen king by the grace of God and the will of the people." It was the starting point of uprisings spreading all over the continent. (World's History.)

Bugs Baer

Chief Big Baer Makes Heap Talk

A defender of that noble clique of legislators points forth that all investigations have been made by senatorial committees.

All of which is truer than a Rand-McNally atlas. But he doesn't say that these investigations happened after the old gray mare had reached the glue factory.

The time to investigate something unavoidable is before it happens. There were boys in Washington who knew that Teapot Dome was being kicked around like a fumble in the Yale Bowl. But they didn't open their mouths any wider than an oyster at low tide.

No big job is pulled without somebody on the inside knowing plenty. When Wall street sells us sour bonds of bankrupt nations you can bet the boys on the flying trapeze have a splendid view of the rest of the circus.

What good is an investigation? When we're drinking our coffee black why bring us the mouse that ate the sugar? And the cat that drank the cream?

We are opposed to all investigations. First, because they don't accomplish any more than slapping at mosquitoes in the dark. Turn on the light and the skeeters get worse.

Second, they bring up bitter financial memories. Third, they reach the acme of lost effort like a man scratching his toupee.

An investigation committee is a corporal's guard picking up the bodies on a deserted battlefield. The most cheerful report they can turn in is a wholesale epitaph.

As to advice and suggestions, well, a man in a windstorm doesn't have to look at a weather vane to know which way to chase his hat. Ugh. The big chief has spoken.

The Banks Reopen

Pittsburgh's Financial Institutions Justify the Faith That Was Reposed in Them

Pittsburgh's banks reopened yesterday. Depositors were privileged to withdraw their money just as before the moratorium. But there was not the slightest suggestion of a run. Business proceeded on normal lines.

Pittsburgh's banks have justified the faith that was reposed in them. They have shown themselves to be among the soundest of the country's banking institutions.

The Senate's Impudence

In Defeating the Sunday Baseball Bill It Has Shown Contempt for Public Opinion

Impudent contempt for public opinion was shown by the Senate at Harrisburg yesterday in voting down the Schwartz local option Sunday baseball bill.

The sentiment of the people is overwhelmingly in favor of repealing the Blue Law. Why the Legislature blocks the move is beyond comprehension.

The fight fortunately is not over. There is still the Steedle bill to be considered. In some respects it is an improvement on the Schwartz bill. Let all liberals in Pennsylvania rally to its support.

Pinchot Disappoints

The Governor Has Fallen Short of the Standards That Some of His Supporters Expected.

Without offering any public justification for his conduct Gov. Gifford Pinchot has removed two Democratic members, Thomas A. Joyce and John Henry, from Allegheny County's Registration Commission.

So far as the public knows the two men have done their work well. They were removed, it is asserted, for no other reason than to please Joseph F. Guffey, State Democratic leader, who desired the places for two members of his faction.

The Governor has been treating the jobs at his disposal as the spoils of office. Time and again, for purposes of political expediency, he has ruthlessly dismissed competent and faithful public officials, and given their jobs to the henchmen of politicians whose favor he sought.

In so doing Pinchot disappoints his friends who expected higher standard of conduct.

Election Reform Delay

It Is to Be Hoped the Postponement of the Hearing Will Not Weaken Public Support.

The public hearing that was to have been held at Harrisburgh yesterday on bills for the improvement of the election system has been postponed for a week along with the hearing on the city manager bill.

A large delegation was planning to go from Pittsburgh to demand enactment of election reform. It is to be hoped the delay will not weaken public support and result in a smaller attendance at the hearing than if it had been held at the time first appointed.

Allegheny County has suffered year after year from election fraud, and it is appropriate that one of the most important of the reform measures has been sponsored by a local Senator, Frank J. Harris.

The Harris Bill provides for permanent registration, which will make it easier for honest citizens to vote and more difficult for the corrupt political machines to put "phantoms" on the rolls. The genuineness of the registrations will be checked by yearly mail tests and by the Vital Statistics Bureau's weekly reports of deaths and removals.

It should be passed on its merits, but since merit is not always sufficient to assure passage of a bill, it is desirable that a large delegation should go to Harrisburg next Tuesday to let the Legislature know that public sentiment demands election reform.

Rebuilding Prosperity

Accordingly, part of his immediate program will doubtless include redeeming at least part of the unemployed from idleness through accelerating public works, including reforestation projects.

Mr. Roosevelt has also given thought to the larger question of applying economic planning to the redistribution of population.

This includes a recognition that the trek from the farms in the last generation has resulted in great congestion in the cities.

Under modern technological conditions, excess population in the cities has ceased to be self supporting, and has accordingly become charges on the public treasury.

There is much promise in a wisely conceived plan to get those of them with farming experience back on the soil as sustenance farmers. Then, if industry can be induced to decentralize its plants to some extent in rural areas, members of such families can supplement their income in kind with cash income from factories.

Land for this social purpose can be acquired at nominal cost, particularly since much has reverted to the public domain for nonpayment of taxes.

Sustenance farmers, raising their own vegetables and poultry, would be vastly better customers of large scale producers of wheat, cotton, corn and livestock than they now are in their pauperized status in the cities.

Unless the leadership of the administration helps redirect the flow of population, the problem of acute unemployment will remain with us even after general business recovers.

Hate.

May seaward fling across the sand
In bitter and revengeful mood,
The ripples spreading on the tide
Ring ever wider and more wide;
The circles where the stone was cast
Grow ever vaster and more vast;
But in the end they fade, they die
Upon the sea's immensity.
No faintest trace of them is seen,
They are as though they had not been;
Unvexed, the mighty waters move;
The stone is hate, the sea is love!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 15.—Since the market crash, 123 persons have nose-dived to eternity from high window sills of New York hotels and skyscrapers. One hotel has had nine such catastrophes, four from the same room. Many passers-by have narrowly escaped being struck by hurtling bodies.

Such suicides almost invariably go in proverbial threes. Someone jumps, and the contagion of suggestion inspires two others in quick succession. There was one period when the mania was so pronounced that hotel clerks roomed strangers, apparently nervous, on lower floors.

For some reason, most of the leaps were made in the late evening, around 10 o'clock, or in the morning, around 8. Psychologists declare this was because the victims did not want to face the agony of another day or night. Financial losses were to blame in most cases.

Only seven were women, and nearly all were past 40. Most of them were unpremeditated; only 14 left notes. A horror of the future, a handy window, and a sudden impulse are the triune motivation for what they hoped might be oblivion.

* * *

I know a man, long obsessed with a suicide mania, who wanted his passing to appear accidental, and, being an expert swimmer, he decided to swim out to sea until his strength gave out. He tried it twice, but always turned back in time. In jumping out a window, there is no turning back.

A persistent report: Bernard Baruch was the only man in the financial marts to come out of the holocaust unscorched. Yet, today, I heard reliably of a puttering bookkeeper in a Cedar street banking house who believed, in 1929, there would be a smash-up. Out of a modest salary he made a small investment that ballooned to $21,000.

So many writers these days create excitement only in the offices of literary reviews. I think of the several Powyses and Sitwells, and even Hugh Walpole. Novel readers and lending libraries scarcely know them. They are writers' writers, but, as such, dominate only the leading critiques in flossy reviews.

* * *

Too, New York hasn't any more silver-tongued orators—Roscoe Conklings, entranced by their own voices, swooning in oratory. Most speeches now are read with a dry monotony of a litany. So few trust to the inspiration of the moment. Jimmy Walker was this sort, and it was his best bid for fame.

This morning, on an errand for my wife, I walked tip-toe into one of those luxurious beauty salons on Fifth avenue. Invariably in such no-man lands, I assume the vague lost air of visitors to churches. The place seemed desolated, although there was a murmur of voices rearward. Finally, I coughed apologetically. Still no response. I tried to say: "Is anyone in?" But my voice, in sudden fluty upshoot, came out in a thin pipe of tenor. So I tip-toed right out. The way I was acting, they might think I came to sit for a finger-wave or something.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are women fit to serve on juries?

Would you trust the fairness of a woman juror's ballot if you were the prisoner before the bar?

The State of Idaho says they aren't—and it wouldn't. And so it has smothered, by a vote of 35 to 9, a bill giving women the right to sit in juries.

What's your reaction to that? Do you agree? Many will. They'll say:

"Women aren't reasoning creatures, anyway. Men go at things intelligently. Women go at things emotionally. They can't be impersonal. Women have no more right to be on the jury than children. They judge like children; decide according to their prejudices. Why, I knew a woman juror once who—"

Then will follow amazing yet perfectly authentic stories of the woman juror who refused to condemn a notorious young criminal because "he was such a lively looking boy" that she "just knew he couldn't be really bad"—

And of another woman who furiously demanded conviction because the prisoner had admitted he was a Socialist and "a person who believed in Socialism wouldn't stop at crime."

"Yes, sir," they say in conclusion, "that Idaho Legislature was right. You just can't trust women to use their brains in public affairs. They aren't geared up for work like that."

However, there's another group who concede that women have brains—plenty of 'em—but who also believe they shouldn't serve on juries.

"Women are too fine and sensitive for work like that," they protest. "It hurts and hardens a woman to know about the seamy side of life. Let the men do it; they can stand it. But women should be protected."

And then there are those who believe that Women Are People and quite as well fitted to cope with current conditions as males.

"Protected? Pooh!" they cry. "Why should a modern woman need protection? She grows up with men; competes with them in sports; works for them, and frequently is their much more successful business rival.

"Not know her world? That's nonsense! Women deal with the world as much as men; often, more. In many cases the wife supports the family while the husband is unemployed. She's actually the head of the house, doing everything the husband used to do. Then why deny her jury duty?

"And as for men jurors—are THEY chosen because of their intelligence and experience? Look them over! Some of them have the brains of 6-year-olds. And as for prejudices, you'll find just as many fool notions amongst men as you'll ever find among women!"

So there you have public opinion, pro and con, on the question of women jurors.

Success is something that grows out from within us.

THE SUN ALSO RISES

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

In a personal letter from Meredith Nicholson, the novelist, in Indianapolis, I find this paragraph which reflects the feeling everywhere:

"Our new President has cheered and heartened the whole country by his prompt and vigorous handling of the financial situation. The change in feeling hereabout yesterday was remarkable."

And all because the country is now getting what it has been wanting — "action and action now." The thing that was wrecking confidence and creating panic was the feeling that we were drifting with no one to assume command and give orders.

The response of the people, regardless of party, has been magnificent. Americans are themselves again; for Americans naturally have not been yellow.

* * *

Roosevelt Meets Press Man to Man

There was something to create confidence, too, in the manner in which the President met the press last week. For the first time since the days of Wilson the head of the nation has faced the representatives of the American press informally and permitted them to ask whatever questions they wished. Naturally, some questions for sufficient reasons will not be answered. Some may be answered "off the record," not for publication, for the intelligent guidance of the writers. Whenever possible, questions will be answered on the spot. The air of mystery, the disposition to conceal, which have had a bad effect, are things of the past.

Man to man, the head of the nation meets the press representatives of the people, and within the bounds of reasonable discretion makes it easier for them to keep the people informed.

No public man ever should be afraid of a Washington correspondent; his reliability and integrity are the assets without which he finds his occupation gone.

* * *

Hoarding Will Be Stopped

Meanwhile, the Government, which is now taking charge of things pertaining to government that have been handled too freely by selfish private interests, is taking steps to end the gold raid. On government orders the member banks of the Federal Reserve Bank are turning over to the Federal Reserve all holdings of gold and gold certificates. The day following the issuance of the order several million dollars were thus delivered. One bank alone turned in $1,000,000.

The raid on gold and hoarding brought the bank crisis upon us. The raid on gold has been stopped and hoarding will be stopped. The Federal Reserve Board has ordered the banks to report to it the names of persons who have withdrawn gold from the member banks in the last two years, and who have not returned it by March 17. Something can be said for the small hoarders, frightened by reports that the big men have been hoarding gold in vast amounts. This is the money of the people on which business and industry depend, and without which there comes a collapse ruinous to the nation and organized society, and it is the right and the duty of the Government to prevent its wholesale withdrawal. When hoardinug reaches the stage where society is threatened, it is as much the duty of the government to stop it as it is for it to stop counterfeiting.

There may be some gentlemen who will be much annoyed by this order of the Federal Reserve Board, but these are the gentlemen who have brought annoyance to all the people of a great nation.

Perhaps we shall have a legislative measure that will prevent this sort of thing in the future.

* * *

President Defines Individualism

The President believes in individualism so long as it does not impose upon, and wreck, the millions who constitute a nation. There has been all too much loose use of the term individualism. Jefferson believed in it, but he would have defined his position thus:

The new President defines his conception thus:

"I believe that the individual should have full liberty of action to make the most of himself; but I do not believe that in the name of the sacred word, individualism, a few powerful interests should be permitted to make cannon-fodder of the lives of half the population of the United States."

We have been acting too long upon the theory that "individualism" means that highbinders and porch climbers should have the right, by virtue of their power, to deprive the millions of their right.

That, we assume is to be changed.

* * *

Leadership Is A Great Thing

Leadership is a great thing.

For two years we have been hammering away in these columns on the idea that finance an industry could clean its own house and rid themselves of sinister practices if it would. Until this week the idea has been cynically received.

Then last week we began to reap a bitter harvest resulting from vicious banking practices.

Then the head of the nation assumed leadership, and served notice that even the most powerful of financial institutions are not overlords of government, and that government intends to do some house cleaning.

And now the leading figures in the financial world are coming forward with a proposal to do what should have been done without governmental prodding long ago. They are eager now to separate commercial from speculative banking.

* * *

Statement of W. W. Aldrich

One of the most important effects of President Roosevelt's assumption of militant leadership is the statement of Winthrop W. Aldrich, the chairman of the governing board of the Chase National Bank.

It is interesting to know that he is the son of the late Senator Nelson Aldrich, the powerful Senate figure, who for many years was the spokesman of Big Business in the Senate, which he dominated.

* * *

We Are Making Rapid Progress

The Aldrich statement has for its central thought this:

"The spirit of speculation should be eradicated from the management of commercial banks, and commercial banks should not be permitted to underwrite securities except securities of the United States government and of states, territories, municipalities and certain other public bodies in the United States."

Had that been the rule 10 years ago we would not be where we are today.

Mr. Aldrich says the proposed Glass bill does not go far enough in separating commercial from speculative banking, and he proposes:

That no corporation or partnership shall be permitted to take deposits unless subjected to the same legal requirements as to the publishing of statements as a commercial bank.

That no such corporation should be permitted to take deposits at all if it deals in securities.

That no officer of a financial corporation dealing in securities should be permitted to serve as director or officer of a commercial bank.

That the directors of commercial banks should be composed of a small number of men "in position to discharge their responsibility to stockholders, depositors and the business community."

We are making rapid progress in the last few days—and the answer is—determined leadership in Washington.

People Cheerfully Accept Inconvenience

Is there any wonder that the national sky is beginning to clear; that the people cheerfully accept the inconveniences of this period of readjustment; that the spirit of confidence is displacing that of hysterical fear?
